These four houses are almost identical with 35,37,39,41 South Stricker and together they are the most substantial houses on Union Square. These houses have the same egg and dart moldings on the cornice and the same molded lintel with scalloped shell design centered on it. Three of these houses have delicate iron balconies on the elongated first floor windows. The doorways are paired, side by side (27-29, and 31-33) and have heavy bracketed projecting doorways. Not as attractively painted as 35,37,39,41, these houses are still more elegant that the common Baltimore row house and add to this side of the square. This block of South Stricker Street needs only some minor rehabilitation to make this side of the square very handsome.
