Slightly more elegant and substantial than the other Union Square row houses, these four are reminiscent of New York Brownstones of the same period and in fact have stoops, door frames, and molded lintels of brownstone. More "Victorian" than the simpler row buildings, 37 and 41 have ornamental balconies on the first floor windows and all have classical egg and dart cornices. Similar to period houses in New York and Brooklyn and other cities, these could make nice town houses.
