DESCRIBE THE PRESENT AND ORIGINAL (If known) PHYSICAL APPEARANCE

A strange little house in two parts, one stone, one frame. The two-story frame house built into the side of the one-story stone section - (see sketch) so that the attic of the stone section becomes the second floor of the newer frame house.

The older house, 1 story stone stucco faces east, the ridgeline runs north-south. A large fireplace rises above the the chimney A-line roof ridgeline at the north end of the house.

The frame section adds 2 bays by 2, two stories high, facing north, the peak of the gable end rising from the ridgeline of the stone section. At the west end there is an inside chimney flush with the wall. Windows in stone section 6 over 6, in frame 2 over 2. No windows on the south
