

Little Orleans Grocery
AL-1-A-043
Orleans Road
ca.1840

Built during the early 1840's, the Little Orleans Grocery was a warehouse and stopping point on the C & O Canal. The building was equipped with pulleys and apparatus to lift cargo to and from canal boats below. In 1905 the building was moved for construction of the Western Maryland Railroad. A year later it was acquired by the Callan family which operated in the store and post office for two generations. Original entrances with heavy outer doors and shutters on the windows retain the early appearance of the building as seen in old photographs.

DESCRIBE THE PRESENT AND ORIGINAL (IF KNOWN) PHYSICAL APPEARANCE

The Little Orleans Grocery is located on the northern side of Orleans Road in Little Orleans.

This building was originally a rectangular structure four bays wide and two and a half stories tall. A three bay frame addition has been added abutting the original on the northwest. Wall construction is of board and batten, partially covered with asbestos shingles.

The building rests on a high stone foundation of random ashlar stone with a plain water table. The eaves consist of a box cornice, soffit, and frieze with returns on the gable ends. The gable flank roof is covered with asphalt shingles.

Wall features include cornerboards. The original chimney is of brick located inside end.

The entrance in the center of the southwestern facade, and a similar one on the southeastern facade are original. They consist of double doors with original hardware, one recessed panel, and two lights each. The entrances are pedimented and have original heavy wooden shutters. Replaced windows are of one over one and two over two lights. Six over six light windows on the rear (northeastern) facade may be original. (See 1896 picture)

A large porch on the southwest and southeast has a shed roof and ten chamfered wooden posts. (See 1896 Picture). The foundation of the building was replaced in 1905 when the building was moved approximately 100 yards.

Old Store Attracts Tourists

By JAN P. ALDERTON
News Staff Writer

With the bicentennial celebration gearing up and the general increased awareness of local history, the Little Orleans area is receiving more and more visitors.

One of the focal points of that area is Bill's Orleans Grocery, a 150-year-old business which once was a warehouse and stopping point for C&O Canal boats.

William J. Schoenadel, owner of the grocery, said that while much of his business is generated by hunters and fishermen, the boom in tourism and the interest in history accounts for many of the visitors who stop by his store.

Located on the Orleans Road, the grocery was originally along the canal, but in 1905 it was moved 100 yards to make way for the laying of track for the Western Maryland Railway.

Besides the close proximity of the 185-mile canal, the store is near the quaint little St. Patrick's Church, which is surrounded by a cemetery that predates the present church building. The earliest burial date in the cemetery was noted at 1802, and the cemetery contains the graves, many of them unmarked, of Irish canal construction workers and their descendants.

The C&O Canal Towpath Guide points out that several tombstones show a birthdate but not a date of death, indicating possibly that an enterprising peddler of tombstones passed through the community in the late 1800s.

Orleans Road itself was the main route from Fort Frederick to Fort Cumberland for many years, and traffic of all sorts — horseback, supply wagons and stage lines — passed over the road until a more direct route across the mountain summits was opened.

Little Orleans was the scene of a riot of construction workers on May 17, 1838 which resulted from non-payment of workers by canal contractors, followed by a work stoppage.

German laborers were hired to replace the Irish, and a German worker was clubbed to death with swinging shillelaghs, while another German was thrown into a bonfire and burned to death.

After reinforcements of 500 duck guns arrived from Baltimore, Irish from Little Orleans to Paw Paw took up arms and a riot near the tunnel ensued. Three companies of state militia from Baltimore responded and confiscated and destroyed the guns, burned Irish shanties, confiscated whisky and suppressed the rebellion.

Owners of whisky subsequently sued as non-rioters and the court held that the militia had acted illegally and exceeded its authority in confiscating privately-owned liquor.

The Orleans Grocery and warehouse, when it was originally located adjacent to the canal, included a beam which extended over the canal and was equipped with a large pulley.

A rope strung through the pulley was used to tie canal boat cargo on the boats and the other end of the rope was hitched to a mule driven along the towpath, lifting the cargo above the level of the warehouse wharf. The suspended cargo rope was then hooked with a pole, drawn to the dock and unfastened.

Mr. Schoenadel has in his possession ledgers dating back to the early 1900s which were kept by C. T. Callen, the then-proprietor of the grocery.

The payroll ledger, for example, shows that a laborer received $2.50 a week salary while "colored help" was paid $2 a week.

Other ledgers, all with neat handwriting, reveal store prices which would be bargains by today's standards. For example: 25 pounds of sugar for $1.63; milk for 10 cents; six yards of calico for 42 cents; three pounds of coffee for 69 cents, and five pounds of nails for 15 cents.

The warehouse and blacksmith repair rates were also neatly registered, including wagon repairs ranging from 25 cents to $1.50 and up; shoeing a horse for 60 cents; and replacing a pick handle for a quarter.

One lucky family obtained a full bedroom of furniture, complete with two large beds, for just $22.10.

Today, the Orleans Grocery caters mainly to the tourist trade — primarily campers — with Mr. Schoenadel estimating that 90 per cent of his business comes from tourists.

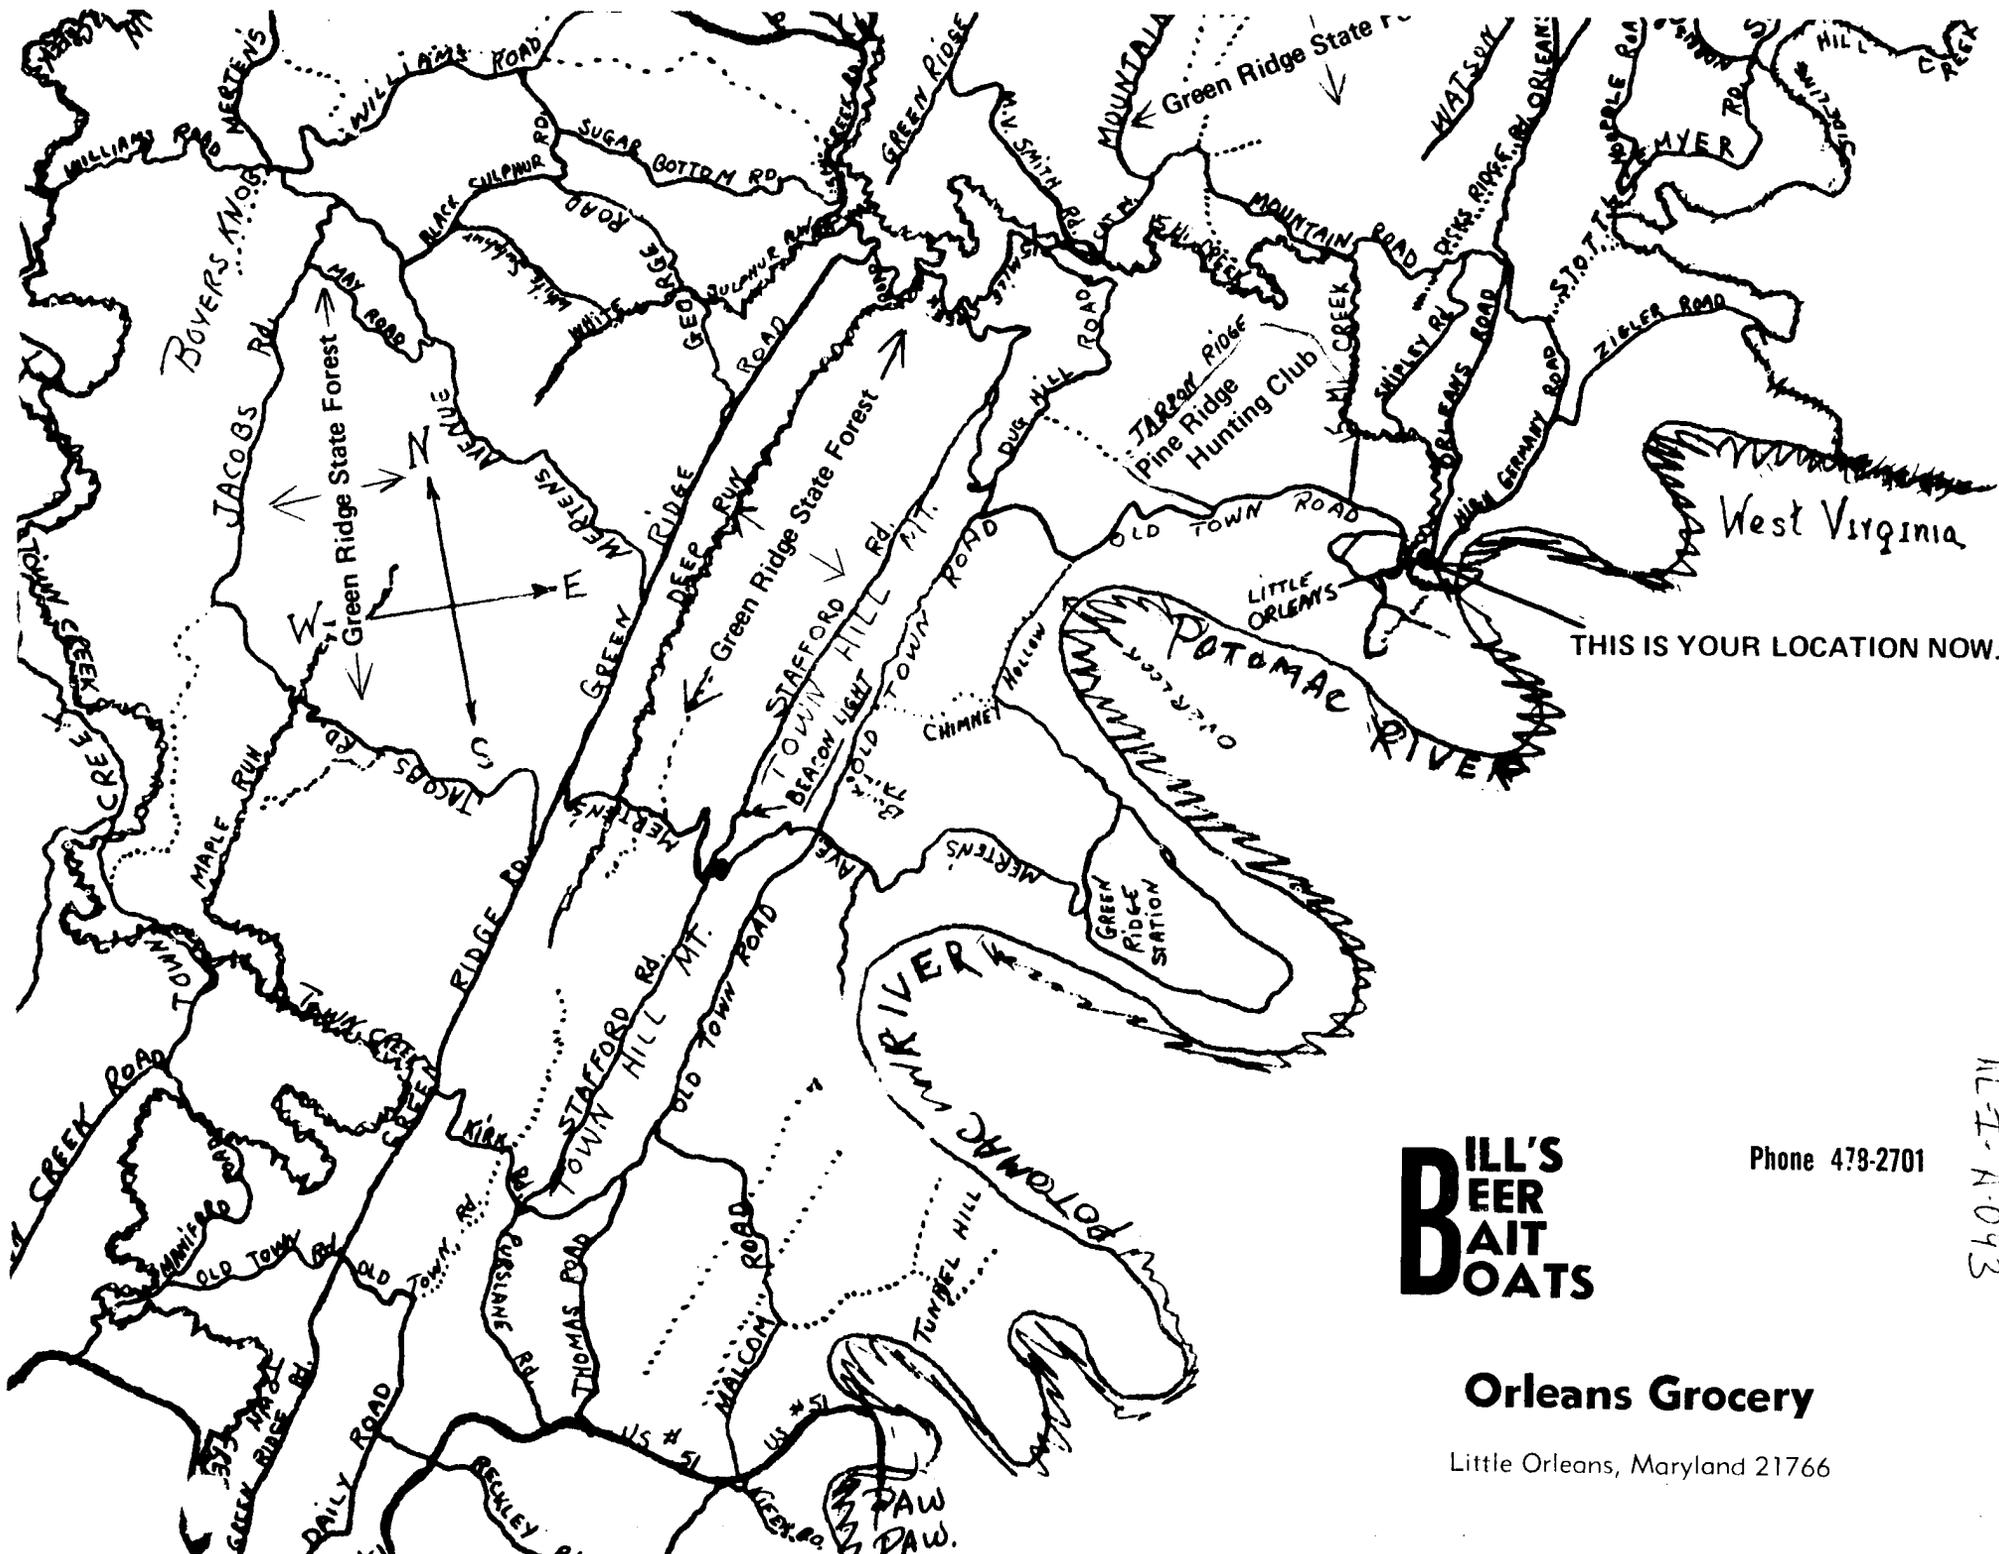

The store's busy season extends from mid-April to December. By far, Mr. Schoenadel said, the busiest time is deer hunting week. Throughout most of the year time out from a canal-long hike to visit the grocery for supplies and a rest.

Mr. Schoenadel, who is himself something of a history buff, said many interesting and revealing facts about the Little Orleans past can be learned from some of the older residents of the area. Until her death two years ago, Mrs. Raymond Higgins, who had been a canal boat cook, spent a number of hours talking to Mr. Schoenadel about life on the canal. She was 98 when she died.

Since he purchased the grocery eight years ago, Mr. Schoenadel has learned of a small hospital which was located nearby. Apparently not much more than a first-aid station, the hospital was still in operation in the 1920s and "Hospital Hill" is located on the Schoenadel property.

Mr. Schoenadel, who is also a printer at The Times and Alleganian Company, operates the grocery with his wife, Ethel. The couple has five children: Paula and Kevin, at home; Mrs. Bonnie Blank of Little Orleans; Steven Schoenadel of LaVale, and John Schoenadel of Cresaptown.
