THE OAKS

Maryland Route 51, northwest of Spring Gap
1913

The Oaks was constructed in the Queen Anne Style in 1913 by the McCabe family of Spring Gap. Exterior wall construction includes a combination of weatherboarding and wooden fish scale shingles. The entire two and a half story, three bay wide structure rests on a high stone foundation now covered with cement. Roofing material covering the gables consists of slate laid in alternating patterns, common to the Queen Anne Style. The main facade is ornamented with a pedimented gable which contains a fan light window. Featured on the front porch are sets of Roman Doric columns which rest on cement supports.

DESCRIBE THE PRESENT AND ORIGINAL (IF KNOWN) PHYSICAL APPEARANCE

The Oaks is located on Maryland Route 51 just north west of Spring Gap, Allegany County.

The Oaks is a large rectangular structure two and a half stories high and three bays wide. The building is a frame structure covered with a combination of weatherboarding and fish scale shingles. The entire structure rests on a high stone foundation covered with cement. The roof is gabled with a soffit and eaves and is covered with slate. The main facade is ornamented with a pedimented gable in the middle of which is placed a fan light window. The gable is covered with fish scale shingles and tops a two story bay which runs from the first floor porch to the roof line. A second cross gable also covered with fish scale shingles ornaments the west facade as well. Windows are double hung wooden sash frames with cornices and plain trim. The main entrance is located on the southwest facade and features a verticle paneled door with a transom and side lights. Other entrances are located on the west and north sides of the building. The main entrance is covered by a three bay end porch with a flat roof and a second small pendimented gable. The porch is supported by groups of two and three Roman Doric columns which rest on cement supports. The entire porch is surrounded by a railing supported by turned ballistors. A second enclosed porch is located at the rear of the building. Two corbeled brick chimneys are located in the interior of the building.
