One of a pair of Vernacular townhouses (with 25), this frame, two story shingled residence has a standing seam metal roof with a simple corbeled chimney. Two bays by three, there is a full width one story hipped roof porch across both parts of the pair, with a metal roof, shingled lower wall and pilasters, and screen inserts. All windows are 1/1 double hung, set in flat casings with molded back bands, those at the second floor framing to molded fascia that is enriched by sawn brackets at the end and center. The roof cornice returns at the gable end. Windows in the gable end have molded lintel caps. The first floor has a transom lit entrance in the inside bay, a 1/1 window in the outer bay, with the same casings as used in the gable end wall. There is a two story ell with one story rear entrance porch, both part of the original construction appended to the rear, inset from the gable end wall. Rectangular in plan, 16'x40'
