DESCRIBE THE PRESENT AND ORIGINAL (if known) PHYSICAL APPEARANCE

The original home of the Drury Family burned in 1897. while everyone was across the road the a party. A new house on the same site was completed late in 1898. The signatures of members of the family and the date can be found in the closets of a second floor bedroom. The chimneys and brick basement, which contained a dairy, are remnants of the earlier structure.

The house was remodeled in the 1930's. A wing containing the present kitchen was added to the back of the house during that time.

The main part of the house is frame, 2 stories, with a T-form roof. The exterior has German sidings and large, four-paned windows. The two story sun porch on the east end of the building was built, according to the owner, for a child with tuberculosis.

The interior of the house is furnished with Victoriary pieves and the floor plan is of typically Victorian complexity. The interior details, moldings and mantels, are very plain. The house is still heated with coal stoves.

There is an old hand dug well on the property: 85 feet deep and 5 1/2 feet in diameter. A small family cemetery is located to the east of the house. It contains the graves of Jerningham Drury (d. 1826), Richard Drury (1805-1841) and Cornelia Lyles (1831-1854) and her infant daughter. There are also several unmarked graves.

The original house appears on the 1860 and 1878 maps as belonging to Mrs. S. Drury and M. Drury respectively.
