Though definitely not architectural landmarks these adjoining houses are of a nice scale and are pleasant buildings. Original feature is a fine cornice with jig saw cut outs in it. This is the type of house that sets much of scale of Annapolis. In good shape, usable.

No. 76 another of this sort - new shingling on street facade, but in poor condition around rear - same height as the others.

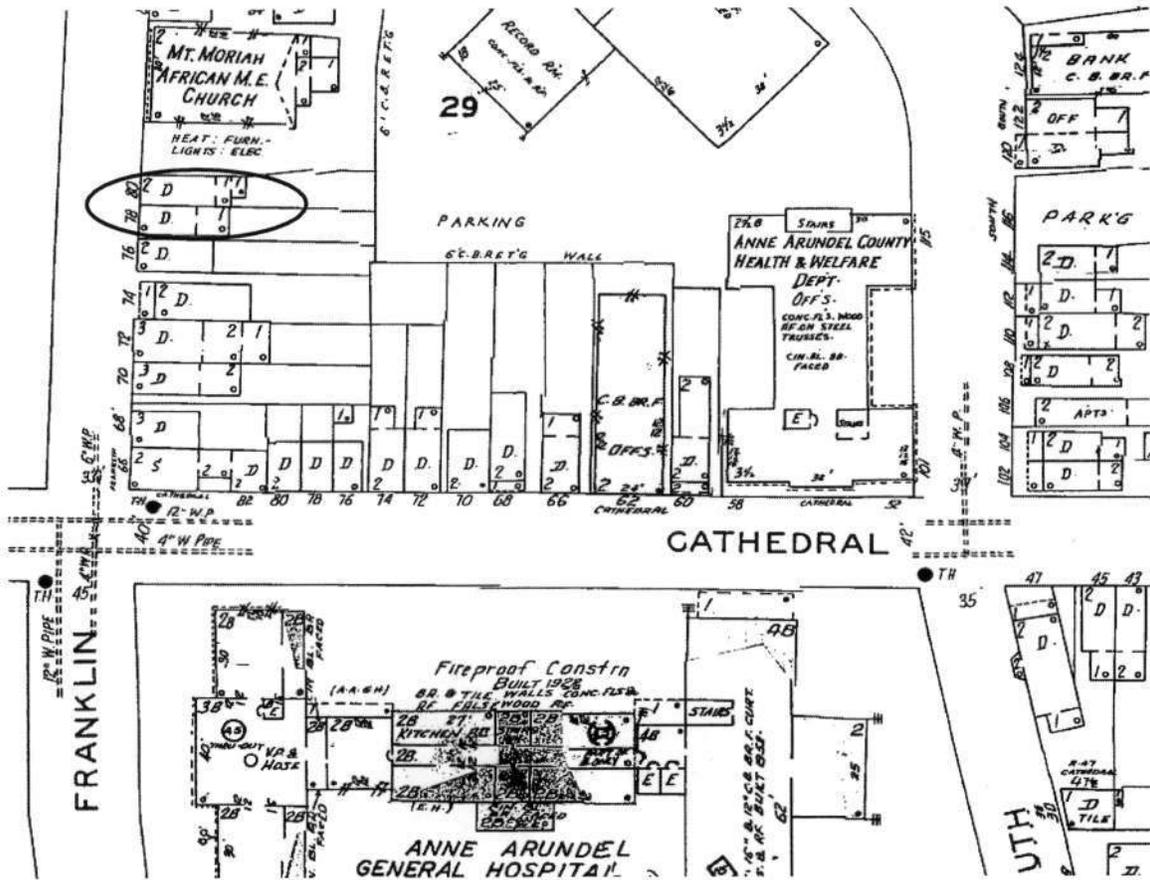

No. 74 also same sort - more elaborate jig saw cornice (photo taken of 74).
