101-103 Market Street

Annapolis, Anne Arundel County

Circa 1878

Private

The pair of single-family dwellings at 101-103 Market Street in Annapolis, Maryland was constructed circa 1878 for Thomas Duvall (101 Market Street) and Charles B. Brewer (103 Market Street). The single wood-frame structure, with a shared interior wall, was constructed on two separate lots owned individually. The Brewer family's association with Stoddard Lot 36, as well as Lots 37 and 38 in Parcel 33, began in 1826 when Richard Ireland Jones sold the land to Brice Beale Brewer. The wood-frame twin dwellings were the third residential buildings to be constructed along the northwest side of Market Street, south of Union Street. The property documents the subdivision of the Brewer land and development of the building lots with single-family dwellings that reflect the fashionable architectural styles of the period. Further, the houses represent the rapid late-19th-century growth of Annapolis, which prompted the extension of Conduit Street and Cathedral Street in 1870s, the laying of Union Street in 1890, and the subsequent subdivision and development of numerous building lots along these new roads.

The Federal-style wood-frame building, original all clad in weatherboard siding, is set on a brick foundation; it was not possible to determine the bonding at the time of the survey. It has a rectangular plan with two-story ells and full-width porches on the principle façade. The structure is clad with weatherboard siding on the façade of 101 Market Street and square-butt, wood shingles on the remaining elevations. The side-gabled roof is clad in asphalt shingles at 101 Market Street and standing seam metal at 103 Market Street. The dwellings, divided by a square-edged in-board, are distinguished on the façade by different cladding materials and roofing materials. The three-bay-wide porches, although not continuous across the façade of the entire structure, are designed in a similar manner. Paired interior-end chimneys of brick rise from the roof at 101 Market Street. A single brick interior-end chimney with a pierced stack projects from the northwestern slope of the roof at 103 Market Street. A corbeled brick chimney protrudes from the center of the ell at 103 Market Street.

Prepare both a one paragraph summary and a comprehensive description of the resource and its various elements as it exists today.

The two-and-a-half-story twin dwelling at 101-103 Market Street in Annapolis, Maryland, was constructed circa 1878. The Federal-style wood-frame building, original all clad in weatherboard siding, is set on a brick foundation; it was not possible to determine the bonding at the time of the survey. It has a rectangular plan with two-story ells and full-width porches on the principle façade. The structure is clad with weatherboard siding on the façade of 101 Market Street and square-butt, wood shingles on the remaining elevations. The side-gabled roof is clad in asphalt shingles at 101 Market Street and standing seam metal at 103 Market Street. The dwellings, divided by a square-edged in-board, are distinguished on the façade by different cladding materials and roofing materials. The three-bay-wide porches, although not continuous across the façade of the entire structure, are designed in a similar manner. Paired interior-end chimneys of brick rise from the roof at 101 Market Street. A single brick interior-end chimney with a pierced stack projects from the northwestern slope of the roof at 103 Market Street. A historic photograph dated April 1922, in a private collection, indicates a similar interior-end brick chimney projected from the southeast slope of the roof (1). A corbeled brick chimney protrudes from the center of the ell at 103 Market Street.

The building is set on a sloping site, with Market Street to the southeast, Spa Creek to the southwest, and Union Street to the northeast. The steeply sloping lot requires a brick retaining wall along Market Street. Two sets of brick steps, beginning at the sidewalk, lead to the front porches. The brick steps have been parged at 103 Market Street. Metal tubing serves as the rails for the stairs. An ivy-clad fence divides the property from 105 Market Street to the east. A tall wooden fence runs along the perimeter of each property, dividing the two back yards.

EXTERIOR

Constructed as one structure, the dwellings at 101-103 Market Street are identically massed, ornamented, and fenestrated on the principle façade. Each dwelling is three bays wide with a side-passage entry opening. The three-bay-wide, wood-frame porches are set low to the ground on brick foundations. The shallow-pitched half-hipped roofs covering the porches are clad in standing seam metal and supported by chamfered square Tuscan posts. These posts are ornamented with scrolled brackets and square balusters. The cornices of the porches are finished with bed molding and boxed ogee profiles. The side-passage entries are ornately detailed with large four-paneled wood doors and very large transoms composed of five fixed lights, the center three being the widest. Between the opening and the transom is reeded head casing. A multi-light wooden door shelters the original door at 101 Market Street. Narrow square-edged casing and lintel caps surround each opening, which are flanked by three-light sidelights set over a recessed panel.

The elongated window openings on the first story of the façade hold 4/6-jib sash. The second story of each dwelling is similarly fenestrated with three window openings. The openings have 4/4 wood sash with extremely thin muntins. Operable paneled wood shutters frame the windows on the first and second stories of 101 Market Street. Louvered wood shutters frame the second-story openings at 103 Market Street. A historic photograph dated April 1922, in a private collection, indicates louvered shutters also sheltered the first-story openings at 103 Market Street (2). Each of the window openings on the first and second stories has square-edged surrounds with no molded profiles.

The molded entablature, which returns on the side elevations, is composed of narrow bed molding, a boxed ogee-molded cornice and metal gutters. Two front-gabled dormers illuminate the upper story of each dwelling. The sides of the dormer at 101 Market Street are clad with asphalt shingles, while those at 103 Market Street are covered with metal sheets. Finely detailed, the dormers have square-edged pilaster casing with an ogee-molded cornice and returns. The gable end has a raked torus molding. The dormers at 101 Market Street hold 6/1 segmentally arched wood-sash windows. The lower sash of the easternmost window has been removed and the opening covered with plywood. The dormers at 103 Market Street have 6/6 segmentally arched wood-sash windows.

The northeast elevation of 103 Market Street, clad in square-butt wood shingles, has two six-light casement windows on the first story. The second story is pierced by a single 6/6 window in the northernmost bay. The gable end has two 6/6 windows. All of the openings have narrow casings and shutter hardware.

As originally constructed, each of the dwellings was augmented by one-story rear ells. Between 1897 and 1903, the ells were both enlarged to two stories. Additionally, the northwestern rear wall of 101 Market Street was extended to provide additional interior space within the main block of the structure. The two-story ell at 103 Market Street was extended by the construction of a one-story rear addition sometime between 1913 and 1921. Largely obscured by mature trees and shrubs, the rear elevation of the structure appears to reflect the alterations undertaken prior to 1921. The first story of the ell was not visible. The two-story ell at 103 Market Street is clad with weatherboard siding on the southwest elevation and wood shingles on the northeast side. It is covered by a flat roof and pierced by paired six-light casement windows. Two double-hung windows with 6/6 sash were noted on the second story of the northwest elevation. Additionally, two 6/6 windows illuminate the second story of the northeast elevation of the ell. The one-story addition is clad with vertical board siding and has a standing seam metal, shed roof. It has a two-light fixed window on the southwest side.

The northwest elevation of 101 Market Street is clad in square-butt wood shingles. It is pierced on the first story by an entry opening and on the second story by elongated 4/4 windows. The roof of each dwelling has two front-gabled dormers. The dormers have square-edged pilaster casing with an ogee-molded cornice and returns. The gable end has a raked torus molding. The dormers at 101 Market Street hold 6/1 segmentally arched wood-sash windows. The dormers at 103 Market Street have 6/6 segmentally arched wood-sash windows.

The southwest elevation of 101 Market Street, clad in wood shingles, is pierced a single elongated 4/4 window on the second story of the main block. A standard-sized 6/6 window is located in the gable. All of these openings have narrow casings and shutter hardware. The ell on the rear of 101 Market Street is fenestrated by two multi-light, double-hung, wood-sash windows on each of the two stories.

The interiors of the dwellings were not accessible at the time of the survey.

SUMMARY STATEMENT

The pair of single-family dwellings at 101-103 Market Street in Annapolis, Maryland was constructed circa 1878 for Thomas Duvall (101 Market Street) and Charles B. Brewer (103 Market Street). The single wood-frame structure, with a shared interior wall, was constructed on two separate lots owned individually. The Brewer family's association with Stoddard Lot 36, as well as Lots 37 and 38 in Parcel 33, began in 1826 when Richard Ireland Jones sold the land to Brice Beale Brewer. The wood-frame twin dwellings were the third residential buildings to be constructed along the northwest side of Market Street, south of Union Street. The property documents the subdivision of the Brewer land and development of the building lots with single-family dwellings that reflect the fashionable architectural styles of the period. Further, the houses represent the rapid late-19th-century growth of Annapolis, which prompted the extension of Conduit Street and Cathedral Street in 1870s, the laying of Union Street in 1890, and the subsequent subdivision and development of numerous building lots along these new roads.

HISTORY

PARCEL 33

The property on which 101-103 Market Street stands was historically part of Parcel 33, which extended from Duke of Gloucester Street to Spa Creek, southeast of what would eventually become Conduit Street. James Stoddert resurveyed parcel 33 for William Bladen in 1718. Thomas Bladen, the son and heir of William Bladen, conveyed the property to Benjamin Tasker in 1721. The Provincial Court Deed records that the property had been improved by a dwelling that appears to have been located at the rear of what is now 110 Conduit Street. In 1724, Thomas Bladen, who had retained lot 38, was forced to convey William Bladen's sixteen Annapolis lots along with property elsewhere in Anne Arundel County to pay off a mortgage held by Thomas Colmore. The property was purchased by Daniel Dulany, who sold lots 13, 25, part of 35, 38, and 79 to Benjamin Tasker for 72 pounds sterling on June 22, 1725. As a result, Benjamin Tasker has gained title to the four lots along Market Street in Parcel 33 that had been surveyed for his father-in-law, William Bladen, in 1718. On February 15, 1725, Tasker conveyed part of lot 35 (which is located to the east of Union Street) to James Carroll. Tasker retained lots 36, 37, and 38 until his death in 1768.

In 1768, Tasker's "dwelling house and the lotts thereto adjoining" was devised to his wife Anne Tasker. Upon the death of Anne Tasker in 1775, the real and personal estate was bequeathed to Daniel Dulany, Jr., her grandson. In July 1781, all of Dulany's land holdings were offered for sale, including lots 13, 14, 27, 36, 37, 38, 39, 40, 64, and 88. The advertisement in the Maryland Gazette on July 12, 1781 indicated one of the lots had been improved by "that commodious and finely situated dwelling house in which Mr. Tasker formerly lived" (1). This dwelling was located on lot 36, at the approximate location of what is today Union Street near the foundations of Bladen's house.

On July 19, 1781, Colonel John Stewart purchased half of lot 35 with a small house, lot 36 with dwelling, and lot 37 with two stables. The purchase price was 1,080 pounds. Stewart assigned ownership of the property to Nathaniel Ramsey. Lot 38 was sold that same day from Stewart to Samuel Chase for 150 pounds. Charles Wallace purchased the property in 1793. The 1798 Federal Direct Tax charged Wallace with a two-story brick dwelling (50 feet by 32 feet), a one-story brick kitchen (24 feet by 20 feet), and a frame stable (24 feet by 16 feet) on two acres (2). Following the death of Wallace about 1803, the property was devised to Leonard Sellman and Charles Wallace Hanson in trust for future subdivision between the children of his three nieces. However, litigation over payment for the bequests made in Wallace's will prompted the Chancery Court to order the property be sold in 1817. Nicholas Brewer, acting as trustee for the court, oversaw the sale of the property in August 1817 to Edward Williams for $1,001 currency. The sale included lots 36, 37, 38, and part of lot 35.

Richard Ireland Jones purchased the lots and improvements in 1824, conveying them two years later to Brice Beale Brewer. Brewer was born about 1792 and married Frances Williams (1793-1842) on April 14, 1814. Together the couple had seven children (Ellen A., Anne Maria, Brice Beale, Jr., Richard H., Jackson, Augustus, and Edward Williams). One year after the death of Frances Williams in 1842, Brewer married Kitty Burgess (b. 1817). This union produced Susan A. Brewer in August 1849. Prior to purchasing the property along Market Street, Brewer owned two lots, one of which was improved, elsewhere in Annapolis. The one-acre lots of land were valued at $100 with the improvement noted at $600. The 1831 Real Property Assessment charged Brewer with three improved lots valued at $3,500. The assessments for the following year noted Brewer had two improved lots with a total value of $1,500.

Brice Beale Brewer died on April 6, 1855. Several years prior to his death, on February 23, 1843, Brewer had divided Parcel 33B among six of his seven living children. The property along Market Street was surveyed in 1846 and subdivided into six lots for distribution: Ellen A. Brewer Sewall (lot one), Brice Beale Brewer, Jr. (lot two), Richard Henry Brewer (lot three), Jackson Brewer (lot four), Anna Maria Brewer (lot five), and Augustus Brewer (lot six). John Duvall surveyed the property on September 24, 1846.

101-103 MARKET STREET

The land granted to Richard Henry Brewer had been improved as early as 1850 by the construction of a single-family dwelling at what is today 105 Market Street (AA-1641). The dwelling fronting Market Street and associated outbuildings that extended northward to what is today Conduit Street are clearly noted on the Edward Sachse's Bird's Eye View of the City of Annapolis (circa 1858) as the only improvements on the southwestern section of Parcel 33 (south of Union Street). The lithograph completed in 1864 by Sachse documents that the dwelling and outbuildings at 105 Market Street continued to be the only improvement on this section of the parcel. In 1866, Richard Brewer subdivided Lot Three, creating the building lot now improved by 101-103 Market Street (AA-600) and 106-108 Conduit Street (AA-412). The property known as 104 Conduit Street and 101 Market Street were conveyed in March 1866 to merchant Thomas Jefferson Duvall (1837-1900). The narrow lot extending northward from 103 Market Street to what is now 106-108 Conduit Street (AA-419), which measured 30 feet wide and 270 feet deep, was conveyed to Charles B. Brewer, a distant relative of Richard Brewer.

Although owned separately, the property at 101 and 103 Market Street were improved circa 1878 by the construction of a single structure containing two single-family dwellings. Architecturally, the buildings were identical in form, design, massing, fenestration, and style. It is interesting to note the design of the buildings is very similar to the neighbors at 99 Market Street (AA-1639) and 105 Market Street, although these buildings predate the construction of 101-103 Market Street.

101 Market Street

Thomas Jefferson Duvall was a merchant, born in 1837. According to the 1880 census, Duvall lived in the house at 101 Market

Street with his family, which included his second wife, Francis (1843-1933), four daughters, and two sons. The Circuit Court for Anne Arundel County named Frank H. Stockett and John Ireland trustees of Duvall's estate in 1885. The property extending from Market Street to Conduit Street (30 feet by 247 feet), together with the improvement fronting Market Street, was included. The land and building were offered at a public sale in August 1886 and purchased by Mary Dashiell Ireland (1848-1943) for $1,801. The sale was finalized with the last payment in March 1890.

Two months after the official conveyance of the property, John and Mary Ireland received a mortgage for the "lot of ground and premises in City of Annapolis on Market Street" from William S. Marcy for $3,000. Richard M. Chase, Jr. was the assignee of the mortgage and, by 1892, had obtained full ownership of the property. Nearly one year later, Chase sold the land fronting Conduit Street to Lydia C. Smith, the wife of William G. Smith, for the sum of $600. He retained ownership of 101 Market Street.

With the death of Chase in 1901, the property was devised to his niece, Mary Pitt Chase (1867-1927). In 1892, Mary Chase had married Dr. James Cushing Merrill of Boston, a major in the United States Army. The 1910 census documents that the widowed Mary Chase Merrill leased the property at 101 Market Street, which was used as a boarding house. In 1919, Merrill sold the house to Samuel Ogle Tilghman, Jr. and Alice M. Tilghman.

Samuel Ogle Tilghman, Jr. was born in 1851 and was a farmer. For fifteen years, he worked as a clerk for the Anne Arundel County Commissioners. In 1882, Tilghman married Virginia E. Brewer (1860-1890), the fourth child of Richard H. Brewer (105 Market Street). Upon the death of his first wife, Tilghman married Alice May Higgins (1871-1951). The 1930 census records that despite the death of Samuel Ogle Tilghman in 1924, Alice Tilghman continued to reside in the Market Street dwelling. She was joined by her mother, Susan Higgins, and her grandson, George Tilghman.

In September 1942, Alice Tilghman sold the property to Janet P. and Langdon D. Pickering. They maintained ownership until May 1944, when the house was bought by Virginia W. and Edwin Taylor. Two years later, in June 1946, J. Pierre Bernard and Sibyl M. Bernard became owners of 101 Market Street. Jean Pierre Bernard, the son of George Richard and Jeanne Bernard, was born in New Orleans in 1901. He attended the United States Naval Academy (class of 1923) and served as a commander in the United States Navy Reserves. Bernard was president, then chairman of the board for Annapolis Bank and Trust. In 1941, he married Sibyl Darlington in San Diego, California. The city directory, coupled with the deed of sale, indicate the Bernards lived at 101 Market Street until October 1952, when it became the home of Else and Jacob Klein.

Jacob Klein died in 1978 and Else Klein passed away in 1992. The Market Street property was devised to their daughter, Gay E. McCollum. She continued to maintain ownership until January 1998, when the house was sold to Kim A. Steffy and Daniel J. Goodman. Two years later, James M. Anthony purchased the property and continues to occupy the dwelling today.

103 Market Street

Charles B. Brewer was born in February 1842, the fourth child of Thomas Brewer and Anna H. Purdy Brewer. He was married to Ellen Stevenson, who was born on February 13, 1858, and was father to Mary Benton Brewer. Immediately upon purchasing the property, Brewer oversaw the construction of a wood-frame structure at 101-103 Market Street. The tax assessments for 1866 initially assessed the then-vacant dwelling and the large lot at $2,500, although because the structure was not occupied or completed, the assessment was reduced to $500. Charles Brewer died intestate on October 10, 1876 and the property was granted to his three-year-old daughter and wife who continued to reside in the single-family dwelling at 103 Market Street. The 1880 United States Census records Ellen Brewer (1858-1918) was keeping house for her daughter Mary, and sisters, Mary Sprague Stevenson (c. 1860-1888) and Elizabeth Stevenson (d. 1910). On February 12, 1883, Ellen Brewer married Frank Blackwell Mayer, son of Charles F. and Eliza C. Blackwell Mayer. Mayer was born in Baltimore in 1827 and was a prominent artist and portrait painter with a studio in the Shiplap House at 18 Pinkney Street (AA-643). His many works include the "Burning of the Peggy Stewart" and "Francis Street, Annapolis," the latter now in the permanent collection of the Metropolitan Museum of Art. Expressing an interest in architecture as evidenced by his artwork, Mayer was responsible for the establishment of a Land and Improvement Company in Annapolis in 1884/1885. Mayer died in July 1899 (3).

In the latter part of the 19th century, the City of Annapolis was undergoing a notable population increase that was directly related to the expansion of the United States Naval Academy and the state and local governments. Improved mass transportation services and local amenities such as paved streets, electricity, and water systems, also brought new residents to the city. The need for housing prompted the subdivision of several 18th-century estates such as the William Paca House on Prince George's Street and the Chase-Lloyd House on Maryland Avenue. The twelve original lots surveyed in 1716 by James Stoddert between Duke of Gloucester Street, Charles Street, and Market Street were not historically joined as a single property under the ownership of any one resident. Rather, the land, which was largely unimproved, was owned by a number of citizens, who recognized the development potential during this period of growth in Annapolis. Consequently, the residents petitioned the City of Annapolis to have new streets created that divided the large parcel into four smaller, individual blocks. On July 1st and August 1st of 1877, the residents with property extending northward from Market Street deeded a portion of their property to the City of Annapolis for the extension of Conduit Street. The property was conveyed by George Wells, the Brewer family, the Duvalls, the Magruders, Mary Stinchcomb, Thomas Tydings, John and Mary Marshall, and the Kilman heirs (also seen as Killman). The new street was referred to as Conduit Street Extended in the deed and traveled southwest from Duke of Gloucester Street to Spa Creek. Soon thereafter, property owners deeded land between Charles Street and Conduit Street to the City for the extension of Cathedral Street. To generate development of the area and enable easier vehicular movement, Union Street was laid in 1890 on property conveyed to the City of Annapolis by Brice Beale Brewer, Jr. and Richard H. Brewer, among others.

Like many of her neighbors, Ellen Brewer Mayer wished to improve the northern end of her property. However, the tax assessments for the years between 1880-1886 indicate the Brewer heirs were charged with one lot on Market Street that was improved by a frame house (103 Market Street). The Sanborn Fire Insurance Maps, historic photographs, and tax assessments suggest that the twin dwellings at 106-108 Conduit Street were constructed for Ellen and Frank Mayer about 1889 (4). Ellen Mayer was charged in 1889 for two frame dwellings on Conduit Street, with a total value of $1,200. The property was intended to be used as rental housing or speculative development.

In 1899, three months after the death of her stepfather, Mary Benton Brewer conveyed her interest in the dwelling at 103 Market Street to her mother. Ellen Brewer Mayer continued to own and occupy the dwelling constructed for her first husband until January 1909, when she sold it for $3,300 to Thomas E. and Rosa Strange. Thomas Edward Strange was born in 1875 and founded Strange and White men's clothing store, which was located at 155-157 Main Street (AA-555). According to the 1910 census records, Strange and his family resided on the upper floor of 172 Church Street (now Main Street, AA-1327). The dwelling at 103 Market Street was leased to James Donald, a gunner with the United States Navy. Donald was born in 1868 in England and had immigrated to the United States in 1883. He lived in the dwelling with his wife, Josie, and their two children.

On January 17 1919, a fire devastated Annapolis, destroying the Colonial Theatre at Main Street and Conduit Street as well as the Strange and White store at 155-157 Main Street. Thomas Strange was deeply affected by the destruction at his business and, in 1923, committed suicide. Rosalyn Strange (1875-1931) continued to use the building as rental housing, leasing it in 1929 to William H. and Mary Ethel Moss. One year prior to her death, Strange sold the Market Street property to Mary Ethel Moss. William Hamilton Moss was born in 1870 and was an auctioneer and real estate agent. Additionally, for four years, he served as president of the Annapolis Water Company. He married Mary Ethel Baldwin (1878-1968) in Arnold, Maryland, in 1901. Prior to moving to the rental house on Market Street, William and Mary Ethel Moss lived at 181 Duke of Gloucester Street (AA-1341).

William Moss died in 1928 and his family continued to reside in the dwelling at 103 Market Street. The 1930 census records valued the property at $6,000. Moss lived with her four daughters and son, as well as a number of boarders. These included

Benjamin Wilson (engineer at the gas and electric company), Eleanor Wilson (teacher), Eleanor W. Duvall (bookkeeper at a paint store), and Eugene Clark (clerk at a lumber company). In 1945, the property was conveyed to Dorothy J. and Morrie Hemmingway Housel.

The Housels divorced in June 1946 and Dorothy Housel married Theodore I. Flittie. The couple maintained ownership of 103 Market Street until December 1948, when they moved to Minneapolis, Minnesota. The Annapolis property was then sold to William Franklyn Joachim, Sr., a diesel engineer, and his wife, Jeanette C. Joachim. The Joachims owned 103 Market Street until 1957, when Otto G. and Eleanor Ann Pitz purchased it. In 1960, Charles L. Demorest, Jr. and his wife, Carolyn Demorest, bought the property and continue to live in the dwelling today.

101 and 103 Market Street are adjoining houses, obviously built together. Their roof dormers, triangular with elliptical windows (6/6), give them a Georgian appearance, however, the cornice is Greek as is clapboarding on 101. The windows (4/4) are rather long, especially on the 1st storey where they extend to the floor. Their doorways have narrow sidelights but very large panes in the transom. The identical porches have early Victorian pillars. Extensions on the rear of both houses are shingle and definitely Greek. Interesting architecturally, as well as good looking, 101 and 103 are Greek Revival-Victorian transitional houses.
