Description: This is a four bay wide, four story high brick structure with wood trim. The altered first story has a central window with a wood base, flanked by two entrances with oval windows. Four small transom windows are located directly above the entrances and show window. All the wood enframing the first floor is a natural color and in good condition. A small unadorned cornice runs between the first and second stories. The second and third stories have four, six over six windows and directly above is another small cornice with simple end brackets. On the fourth story there are three, eight over eight windows set in segmental brick arches. Above the fourth story is a heavy wood cornice with elaborate consoles, dentils, modillions and a brick parapet caps the facade.

Significance:

Area: architecture

Level: local

The architects Hoyt & Mackintosh designed the building at 36 South Calvert Street in 1904. The building has a compatible new natural wood storefront. The structure features windows set in segmental brick arches and a heavy wood cornice with elaborate consoles, dentils and modillions. The structure does contribute to the historic character of the area.
