This narrow Queen Anne building of brick has a first floor shop front. The display window of a single pane slopes inward towards the second doors on the left. These glass and metal doors are topped by transoms (the one on the far left is a jalousie; the other, a single pane) The shopfront is is enframed by opaque black glass and vertically grooved, black enameled metal. The upper two floors have three bays and the windows are jalousies. The central window on the second floor has a segmentally arched lintel, with a wood typanum ornamented by pierced scroll designs. The side windows on both floors have gauged brick lintels. All the windows have stone sills. The central window on the third floors has a flat stone lintel capped by a semicircular panel of ornamented brickwork. Other molded brick patterns appear in rectangles and three band courses. The cornice is corbeled, and a central panel in greater relief emphasizes the elaborate middle third floor window.
