Cedarcroft
Baltimore City, MD

Description

Cedarcroft is a large 2 1/2 story frame Victorian Eastlake style house with a modified rectangular floor plan, center roof dormer and large front porch. Situated facing East, the five bay house is wood frame with a slate roof. Stone masonry forms the foundation and fireplace chimneys. Wide marble steps lead to the spacious open front porch.

Upon entrance through the main door, there is a wide and grand foyer with large sunny rooms to each side. In the rear of the house there is a modest kitchen and service stairwell to the second floor. The main staircase in the front foyer is semi-circular, leading to the numerous guest rooms on the upper floors. Presently, the tongue-in-groove oak hardwood floors overlay the original mahogany boards on the first floor and pine boards on the upper floors.

The current 2 1/2 acre estate was originally part of a 45 acre orchard, north of Govanstowne in Baltimore County which fronted York Road and extended west to Bellona Avenue. Remaining outbuildings include the summer kitchen and orchard building, currently used as a large outdoor tea room. The outbuildings were built presumably with the house in 1886. The grounds are well landscaped with pathways leading to various flower gardens and statues.

Circa 1928, portions of the estate were sold and developed into a residential neighborhood now known as Cedarcroft. The property currently borders Sycamore Road and lies within the City limits.

Cedarcroft
Baltimore City, MD

Statement of Significance

Cedarcroft is significant to the local history of Baltimore because of the estates first resident, George M. Lamb. Built as a summer home in 1886, the estate has been maintained as a residential house throughout its life. With few alterations to the structure of the main house, the house is still reflective of its Victorian Eastlake style.

Until 1991 Cedarcroft had been the home to the descendants of the Lamb family. Remaining as a private home, the property continues to be well maintained with decorative gardens throughout the estate.

Historical Background and Significance

Located in the north section of Baltimore City, Cedarcroft is comprised of only 2 1/2 acres of what was once a 45 acre parcel of land. Purchased in 1885 by George M. Lamb, the property was maintained as an orchard until circa 1925.

George M. Lamb was a successful and well-respected Baltimore City businessman who started a produce and pork packing business with his brother, John Emerson Lamb, Jr. Descendants of a family that sailed from Nottingham, England to the Eastern Shore, he was a devout Quaker. Married to Annie L. Roberts of Moorestown, New Jersey in 1876, George M. Lamb had four children when he purchased the land.

The George M. Lamb family often entertained at their summer residence, known as Cedarcroft. During the years at Cedarcroft, many prominent people visited the estate as guests of the family. From local political figures to the family of President Taft, the Lambs served as hosts on their summer visits.

George M. Lamb and Cedarcroft reflect the association that the wealthy businessmen of Baltimore City had with its growth. When purchased in 1885, Cedarcroft was an hour trip from the city along dirt and stone roads. Situated in what was then Baltimore County, north of Govanstowne, the land was bordered by the turnpike York Road. With a 45 acre tract of land, the Lamb family, like many wealthy members of the city, moved north of the city and established summer retreats. As the city expanded, the owners of these estates sold their land to developers for future residential neighborhoods.

Cedarcroft, while reduced in land acreage, reflects the character of a grand estate. With few alterations beyond the introduction of electricity and modern plumbing, the home remains substantially true to its original Eastlake style.

GEORGE MICHAEL LAMB

THE LATE George Michael Lamb, who for many years occupied an honorable place in the business circles of Baltimore, was born in Baltimore County on July 25, 1847, and died in Baltimore City on January 2, 1908. He was a son of John Emerson and Esther (Matthews) Lamb. On both sides of the family he was of English descent. John Emerson Lamb was an educator, a man of unusual ability, who organized and became principal of Milton Academy in Baltimore County, a school in which many of Maryland's representative men received their education. He was a generous, upright and unselfish man, whose children have since risen up to do him honor.

His wife, Esther Matthews, was a daughter of Eli and Mary Matthews. Eli Matthews was descended from an Englishman who came over from England in the time of Cromwell and settled in Baltimore County.

John E. Lamb's family history in Maryland goes back to Pierce Lamb, who was a member of the Society of Friends. He came from England in the early colonial period and settled in Kent County on the Eastern Shore, that old county which has been fairly a breeding place for the great families of Maryland. Pierce Lamb had two sons: Francis and Pierce. The second Pierce drifted West. Francis remained in Maryland. He was twice married, and was the father of eight sons, five by the first wife. It is from the children of his first wife that George M. Lamb was descended. His father founded the Milton Boarding School in 1848. The Civil War interfering with the schools of that section, he became attached to the internal revenue service and spent the remainder of his life in that work.

George M. Lamb's early years were spent in the country. He obtained a good education in the Milton Academy and the Westtown Boarding School in Pennsylvania. Following that, he took a commercial course in a Baltimore business college; and in 1867, entered upon business life as an employee in the then firm of Gist and Wells. His ability and fidelity carried him steadily forward, and he became a partner in the business; and upon the death of Mr. Joseph Gist, became head of the firm, the name of which was then changed to Lamb and Kemp, Mr. Edward Kemp having been admitted to partnership. This partnership continued a few years; was then dissolved, and a new firm succeeded, composed of Mr. Lamb and his younger brother, John Emerson Lamb, under the firm name of G. M. Lamb and Brother. The business was a produce commission, combined with a pork-packing establishment, and occupied two warehouses on South Street. In 1907, the business of G. M. Lamb and Brother was united with the R. M. Jones Company and incorporated under the style of Jones and Lamb Company. After the fire of 1904, the business became an exclusively pork-packing establishment.

Reared in the faith of the Society of Friends, to which his family had been attached for generations, Mr. Lamb carried into his business the moral earnestness and the unswerving integrity for which the Friends are always and everywhere noted. Resulting from this, he had the absolute confidence of his business associates and the highest respect and esteem of all with whom he came in contact. He served for a time as a trustee and member of the executive committee of the Enoch Pratt and Sheppard Hospital, and was also a director for the Savings Bank of Baltimore.

His political affiliation was with the Republican party; but he was not active in political life. In his private life, he was a great home lover, and his chief pleasures were found in his country home, where it was always his greatest delight to dispense hospitality to his friends with his family gathered around him. He was an unassuming, useful, quiet citizen who served his generation faithfully.

His older brother, Eli M. Lamb, took hold of the now famous Friends' School in Baltimore some forty-five years ago, when it had but twenty scholars, and made of it one of the famous educational institutions of that section of our country.

On February 22, 1876, Mr. Lamb was married to Miss Annie L. Roberts, daughter of Josiah and Lydia Roberts of Moorestown, Burlington County, New Jersey, a family settled for generations in that section. Five children were born of this marriage, all of whom are living: Edith, the daughter, married Howard Cooper Johnson of Philadelphia, and is now a resident of that city. The sons are: George M., Junior; Robert Emerson; Philip Edward, and James Gibson Lamb.

DESCRIBE THE PRESENT AND ORIGINAL (IF KNOWN) PHYSICAL APPEARANCE

The Cedarcroft Estate House was originally a simple cottage frame house, two stories high, five bays wide, and two bays deep. During the nineteenth century it was decorated with Italianate detail, the bracketed central eave, cornices, window hoods and porch piers, and the vertical treatment of the central dormer being the foremost elements of this style. A "gingerbread" effect was also employed with the addition of delicately detailed balustrades of the open walk of the second story and of the first story veranda.

Presently the building is topped with a slate shingled gabled roof. This is ornamented with decorative chimneys flanking either side of a central bay additional dormer. A double sash casement window of eight lights is located in the center of the dormer. The deeply projecting, bracketed eave, central window-hood and cornice are still intact. Double hung windows of the first and second stories are double hung and have shutters and plain surrounds. The main entrance of the first floor central bay has a fan transom and side panels. The one story veranda is supported by eight piers and has a bracketed cornice trim. The open walk atop the veranda, the balustrades and the pier brackets have been removed. A one story sunroom has been added on the south (left) side and several additions have been made to the rear of the building.

The Cedarcroft Estate House is located at the center of the middle to upper class development which was named after the Cedarcroft estate.

STATEMENT OF SIGNIFICANCE

The Cedarcroft Estate House is the oldest building surviving in Govans. Originally a simple wooden cottage house, it was redecorated in the Italianate mode during the nineteenth century. It was owned by George Micheal Lamb, a noteworthy bussinessman and educator, from the later part of the 1800's into the twentieth century. (See attachment on George Micheal Lamb).

The Cedarcroft estate was also the site of the Govanstown Racetrack where Betsy Patterson is said to have met Jerome Bonaparte.

"At Govanstown the races were attended by the beauty and social element of Baltimore and it is stated that one day as Jerome rode out to the races from Baltomore that he was one of the most superb-looking men then living. It is claimed by Mary Chase Barney in her 'Biographical Memoirs of Commodore Joshua Barney', that it was at one of these social events that Bonaparte...first met Miss Patterson". (William Frederick Adams, 1912).

The Cedarcroft Estate House was then known as the "Haunted House" as it was apparently uninhabited. The racetrack has long since vanished but "Cedarcroft" still remains as a remnant of the very early days of Govans.
