c.1855-1875

The east side of the 1100 block of Battery Ave. is improved with a number of different types of houses. 1101-1103 Battery Ave. is a pair of two story, two bay wide brick houses with gable roofs, set on high basements. The houses were built in the early 1850's and are typical of the type of small house built for low-income families in this period. 1107-1107, 1109-1111, and 1113-1115 Battery Ave. are pairs of three story, two bay wide brick houses with shed roofs and bracketed cornices, built in the period 1855 to 1865 by three different builders. Extending south from 1117-1123 Battery Ave. is a row of two story, two bay wide brick houses with shed roofs and simple brick cornices, built in the early 1870's. 1125 Battery Ave. is a three story, two bay wide brick house with gable roof, and to the south, at 1127-1131 Battery Ave. there is a group of two story, two bay wide brick gable-roofed houses, built in the late 1860's. Finally, at 1133 and 1135-1137 Battery Ave. there is a group of three story, two bay wide brick houses with gable roofs, built about 1866.

DESCRIBE THE PRESENT AND ORIGINAL (IF KNOWN) PHYSICAL APPEARANCE

This two story, two bay brick house with gable roof represents a late version of the gable roof style, having been built c. 1870. The house has been covered with formstone.

The house is two stories in height, 14' wide, and occupies a lot 82' deep. There is a two story high, two bay deep rear addition, followed by a one story high, two bay deep frame addition. The house is constructed in running bond but the facade has been covered with formstone. The low-pitched gable roof has a two-tier brick cornice which has been hidden by the formstone. There is a hooded rear roof chimney located along the south side of the house.

Although the original treatment of the door and window lintels and sills has been hidden by the formstone covering, it is apparent that all of the openings had segmentally arched brick lintels with solid wood tympanums. The windows now have brick header sills, but these may be contemporary with the formstone covering. All of the window openings are filled with 1/1 double hung sash. There is a glass and panel door, with multi-lights set over a lower panel. The single light transom has been filled with a piece of stained glass. The house sits on a very low basement, the entrance being reached by one brick step. There is a rectangular basement opening, filled with two lights, located to the right of the steps.

BUILDER/ARCHITECT Anna Heighe (developer)

STATEMENT OF SIGNIFICANCE

This house is significant as being representative of a group of quite modest two story, gable-roofed houses built in the southern section of Federal Hill in the 1850's and 1860's to serve as inexpensive housing for the influx of newly arrived immigrant families seeking work in harbor-related activities. Most such houses were held by the builder as rental property, but this house and its neighbors were sold to individual owner-occupants. In terms of design, the houses are basically the descendants of earlier Federal-style working class housing built in the early decades of the century, but without the usual dormer story of such houses. Because there is no dormer story the roof slope is less steep in these later versions of the style. The houses are quite small, with two rooms on each floor and a centrally located, tightly winding staircase. The kitchen is located in a rear addition.

The house was built by an unknown builder for Anna Heighe who developed this section of Battery Ave. in the late 1860's-early 1870's (see under 1117-1123 Battery Ave.). The house was sold to a William Scharf, a laborer.¹
