

11-13 E. CHESAPEAKE AVE.

Several factors make this building a significant one:

That Towson's history is largely that of a rural commercial center is a well known fact and the buildings which document tradition are among the town's more important structures. This building dates from that period when Towson was rural in character.

The plan of the building certainly speaks of a bygone lifestyle that was quite common and it is that of street level shops with residences above. Towson had many such structures in the 19th century and early 20th century.

The survey indicates that duplexes were an important type of housing in this town and # 11-13 E. Chesapeake is one of them.

Last, but certainly not least, the design of the building places it within the Victorian era. Because of the prominent position # 11-13 occupies in a row of early buildings and given the potential for revitalization in the Delaware Ave.-East Chesapeake neighborhood that fact should not be ignored.

DESCRIBE THE PRESENT AND ORIGINAL (IF KNOWN) PHYSICAL APPEARANCE

11-13 East Chesapeake Ave. does not appear on the 1915 Bromley, however, it has strong Victorian qualities. Chief among these is the fenestration which includes store-front windows on the first level and 2/2 sash with louvered shutters elsewhere.

This building is a frame and clapboard structure two stories in height and it rests in a low brick foundation. It is a duplex with a longitudinal plan being a total of four bays in width and three long bays deep. The roof is flat and stepped in the sides to suggest parapets.

The street facade is the strongest and it faces South. One can see from looking at it that the building was designed to accommodate two shops downstairs each having living spaces above. Each side of the first story features a large polygonal display window that consists of large panes of glass with smaller transoms above. Wooden inset panels complete the transition between the windows and ground (30"-36"). A recessed area between the two display windows forms a portico containing four doors. The ceiling of this area is finished with tongue-and-groove. Each of the two outer doors leads into a shop while the two inner doors give access to the separate stairways of the apartments above. All of these doors have transoms.

Four evenly spaced 2/2 sash windows vent the area above the shop front and the facade terminates with a plain cornice which projects nearly a foot from the wall.

The two sides (East and West) are identical in that they are divided into three equal bays each being vented by 2/2 sash windows in both stories. Each bay is further defined by a "step" in the cornice line. An interior flue chimney occupies the northeast corner of the building and presumably the northwest corner as well (access not gained).

An alley borders the property on the East. From it one can see that the north facade has an altered two story porch which provided each of the apartments with a gallery. The porches are supported by thin square columns and have a picket fence for a bannister.
