According to the MHT form prepared and presented to MHT as part of this review, The Rossville Inn is not eligible for individual listing in the National Register of Historic Places. The house is located near the intersections of MD 7 and Rossville Boulevard, in Rossville, a suburb of Baltimore, and faces a heavily commercialized area characterized by strip malls and fast food restaurants. The building was probably constructed as a commercial building ca. 1930 at the time that the commercialization of this area began. The two-story frame building has been significantly altered and compromised by additions and new materials. It lacks the architectural distinction and integrity necessary to qualify it for listing in the National Register under Criterion C. Further, the building is not known to have any associations with persons or events significant to our past, nor to have any archeological potential. The property is thus not eligible for listing in the National Register under Criteria A, B, or
