

DAMPMAN'S HOTEL - 1850-1855 - Harford Road and Sunshine Avenue, southwest corner, at Fork village. Old frame hotel used by farmers on their way from Harford County to Baltimore. During the Civil War, Sergeant William Fields, one of the Confederate raiders who was shot by civilian Ishmael Day, was by some accounts taken to this hotel and later moved to Baltimore where he died at West's Hospital; this version of the shooting was given by James Kelley, a Towson attorney. Fields was the only casualty of the war in that neighborhood. Dampman's Hotel, to which Dampman never had title, was advertised in 1895 as having been a hotel for 40 years. It served as J. Lester Smith's store for decades, and once housed two rival telephone exchanges. Building damaged by fire on November 6, 1976. Restored and carries on as an antique shop.
