were making every effort to "supplement the natural attractions such as a bathing beach and fishing," and that a 100-acre tract was being set aside for a country club and golf course. The article also stated that surveyors and road graders were at work constructing preliminary streets and other improvements. In 1925, lots 50 feet by 150 feet were being offered at prices of $200 and up (Washington Post, 3 July 1925). The development was not particularly successful and only approximately seventeen buildings were constructed on the property from 1925 to 1942.

A review of aerial photographs of the area reveals that CT-1307 was constructed sometime before 1938. In a 1947 map of the Mine Warfare Test Station, CT-1307 is simply labeled "house", indicating no special function or purpose related to activities or operations of the Naval Warfare Mine Test Station. Although CT-1307 falls under the categorical style of bungalow, it is not a particularly good example. The building has also been subjected to several alterations. CT-1307 is not architecturally distinct, nor does it convey any significant historical associations. CT-1307 is not recommended for listing in the NRHP.

Consideration of a historic district is not recommended for two reasons: the percentage of pre-NAS Pax River buildings in the area no longer satisfies the required threshold for consideration of a district; and the existing pre-NAS Pax River buildings that were not surveyed as part of this report appear to be, for the most part, considerably altered.
