The Jackson House

Mutual Vicinity

Private

c. 1870's

This one and a half story log house began its history as a small dwelling with one room downstairs and another upstairs. Since then, additions have considerably the living space, providing more privacy and rooms for specialized purposes. The house was probably built at the time when the land was given to the parents of the present occupant, Mamie Jackson, to occupy rent free in c. 1870's or 80's. Her parents may have been ex-slaves of the Parker and Briscoe families, who gave them this place to live and farm.

DESCRIBE THE PRESENT AND ORIGINAL (IF KNOWN) PHYSICAL APPEARANCE

The appearance of this one and a half story log house has considerably changed since its construction. Originally it consisted of only a principal block that measured 16' 11" x 15' 7" and that had a two bay facade (a door centrally placed and a 2 x 2 light, double hung sash window to the north). This block was ( and still is ) comprised of one room downstairs, and another upstairs. The logs were exposed, but are now sheathed by tar paper siding molded in the form of red bricks. A screened front porch has been added along the entire facade (west) of the house including the 1 room frame addition to the southern gable end. This room (a bedroom) has two windows on the facade, two on the southern end, and a back door opening to the outside, making this the best lit and best ventilated room in the house. To the rear (east) have been added two, small, one story, frame additions, the larger of which is the kitchen in which a wood burning stove was used. The northern gable end had no windows. Ascending its exterior wall was a cinder block stove flue.

STATEMENT OF SIGNIFICANCE

Based on information supplied by Mrs. Dorothy Rice, who lives next door (south), this house was occupied by John<sup>A</sup>y and Mamie Jackson, and before then by Mamie Jackson's parents, since c. 1880's. Mrs. Rice said that the Jacksons had been given this land to use, rent and tax free, by the Parker and Briscoe families (white) of nearby Parker's Wharf. Mrs. Jackson herself is now in her 90's, has lost her eyelight, and lives in Texas with her son. The house is locked up and unoccupied, though still furnished. This house does not appear to be older than the 1870's or 1880's and was probably built near the time when the parents of Mamie Jackson were given the land to use.
