STATEMENT OF SIGNIFICANCE

Although the building is gone this mill is survived by the remains of the barn that was necessary to keep its race full of water. It is also survived in the memories of the older citizens of the neighborhood such as Miss Gray, her sister, and Mrs. Daisey Cox. The last operator was named Gantt although others are thought to have operated a mill on this site too. A map provided by John Magrain of Baltimore County indicates Brooks, Laveille, Coates, and Hammet as having had mills in this vicinity. The Gray sisters recall a negro man named Coated operating this mill and they remember ice being cut from the "mill swamp" that was stored in their family's ice house and sold to folks from "miles around". A grinding stone from this mill is incorporated in the walkway beneath the cement steps of their home that is also one of those buildings having cypress siding.
