DESCRIBE THE PRESENT AND ORIGINAL (IF KNOWN) PHYSICAL APPEARANCE

This much-altered frame house retains enough of its original form and proportions to suggest its earlier appearance. Several features indicate a side-hall, double-parlor plan with double end chimneys. The tall two-story gable-roofed house is nearly square.

The south-facing, three-bay facade includes an entrance to the left and two modern one over one windows to the right. The three one over one windows occupying the second floor bays are spaced more regularly than the first story bays, and there is a disproportionately wide distance between the two stories. This indicates that the house may have been raised from one or one and a half to two stories, or the first floor may have an especially high ceiling. All architraves consist of plain flat boards, but they are certainly not original.

Two exterior brick stove-flue chimneys scale the east gable end. They are probably replacements for earlier chimneys serving fireplaces.

Crimped sheet-metal covers the roof. Regular 6" lapped wooden siding sheathes the walls. The house stands on a haphazardly-laid concrete block foundation.

The vigorous vigilance of a rival watch-goose and watch-dog negate the possibility of interior inspection of this interesting dwelling.
