This early twentieth-century four-square house faces west toward Maryland Route 765. Set on a concrete-block foundation, this two-story framed and weatherboarded house is sheltered by a hipped roof with a ridgeline that runs perpendicular to the facade. There is a hipped dormer in each of the four faces of this roof, which is covered with decoratively molded sheet metal. The house has three-bay long sides and a two-bay facade composed of a side-lighted off-center doorway and a polygonal bay. The windows of the house are glazed with one-over-one double-hung sash. The two bays of the second-story facade are composed of paired windows. A one-story hipped-roof porch is supported by Doric columns set on square piers with rails and balusters between them.
