This one-story three-bay framed and weatherboarded gable-roofed dwelling faces north near the end of the improved part of Tate Road. The house has a two-room plan and a central brick stove flue. An addition was made to the rear of the house in the 1960s. The windows and doors of the original section have been replaced. The house is set on low masonry piers and is now sided with asbestos shingles. It dates from the turn of the century.
