Prepare both a summary paragraph and a general description of the resource and its various elements as it exists today.

This framed and weatherboarded three-bay I-house faces west onto Solomons Island Road. It has two interior gable-end brick chimneys and a front-facing gable centered in the roof. The windows are glazed with six-over-one and two-over-two double-hung sash. The original siding has been replaced with tar paper. The one-story hipped-roof front porch was added during the early twentieth century era of popularity for bungalow-type dwellings. The porch has a small front-facing gable and is supported by thick, tapering piers. There is a two-story rear ell.
