and are situated at the south end of the property. The original building, circa 1826, is three stories high, while the addition, circa 1865, is two stories high with a basement. Both original building and addition are brick load-bearing construction with wood floor joists and wood roof joists and a single slope. Noteworthy exterior architectural features include:

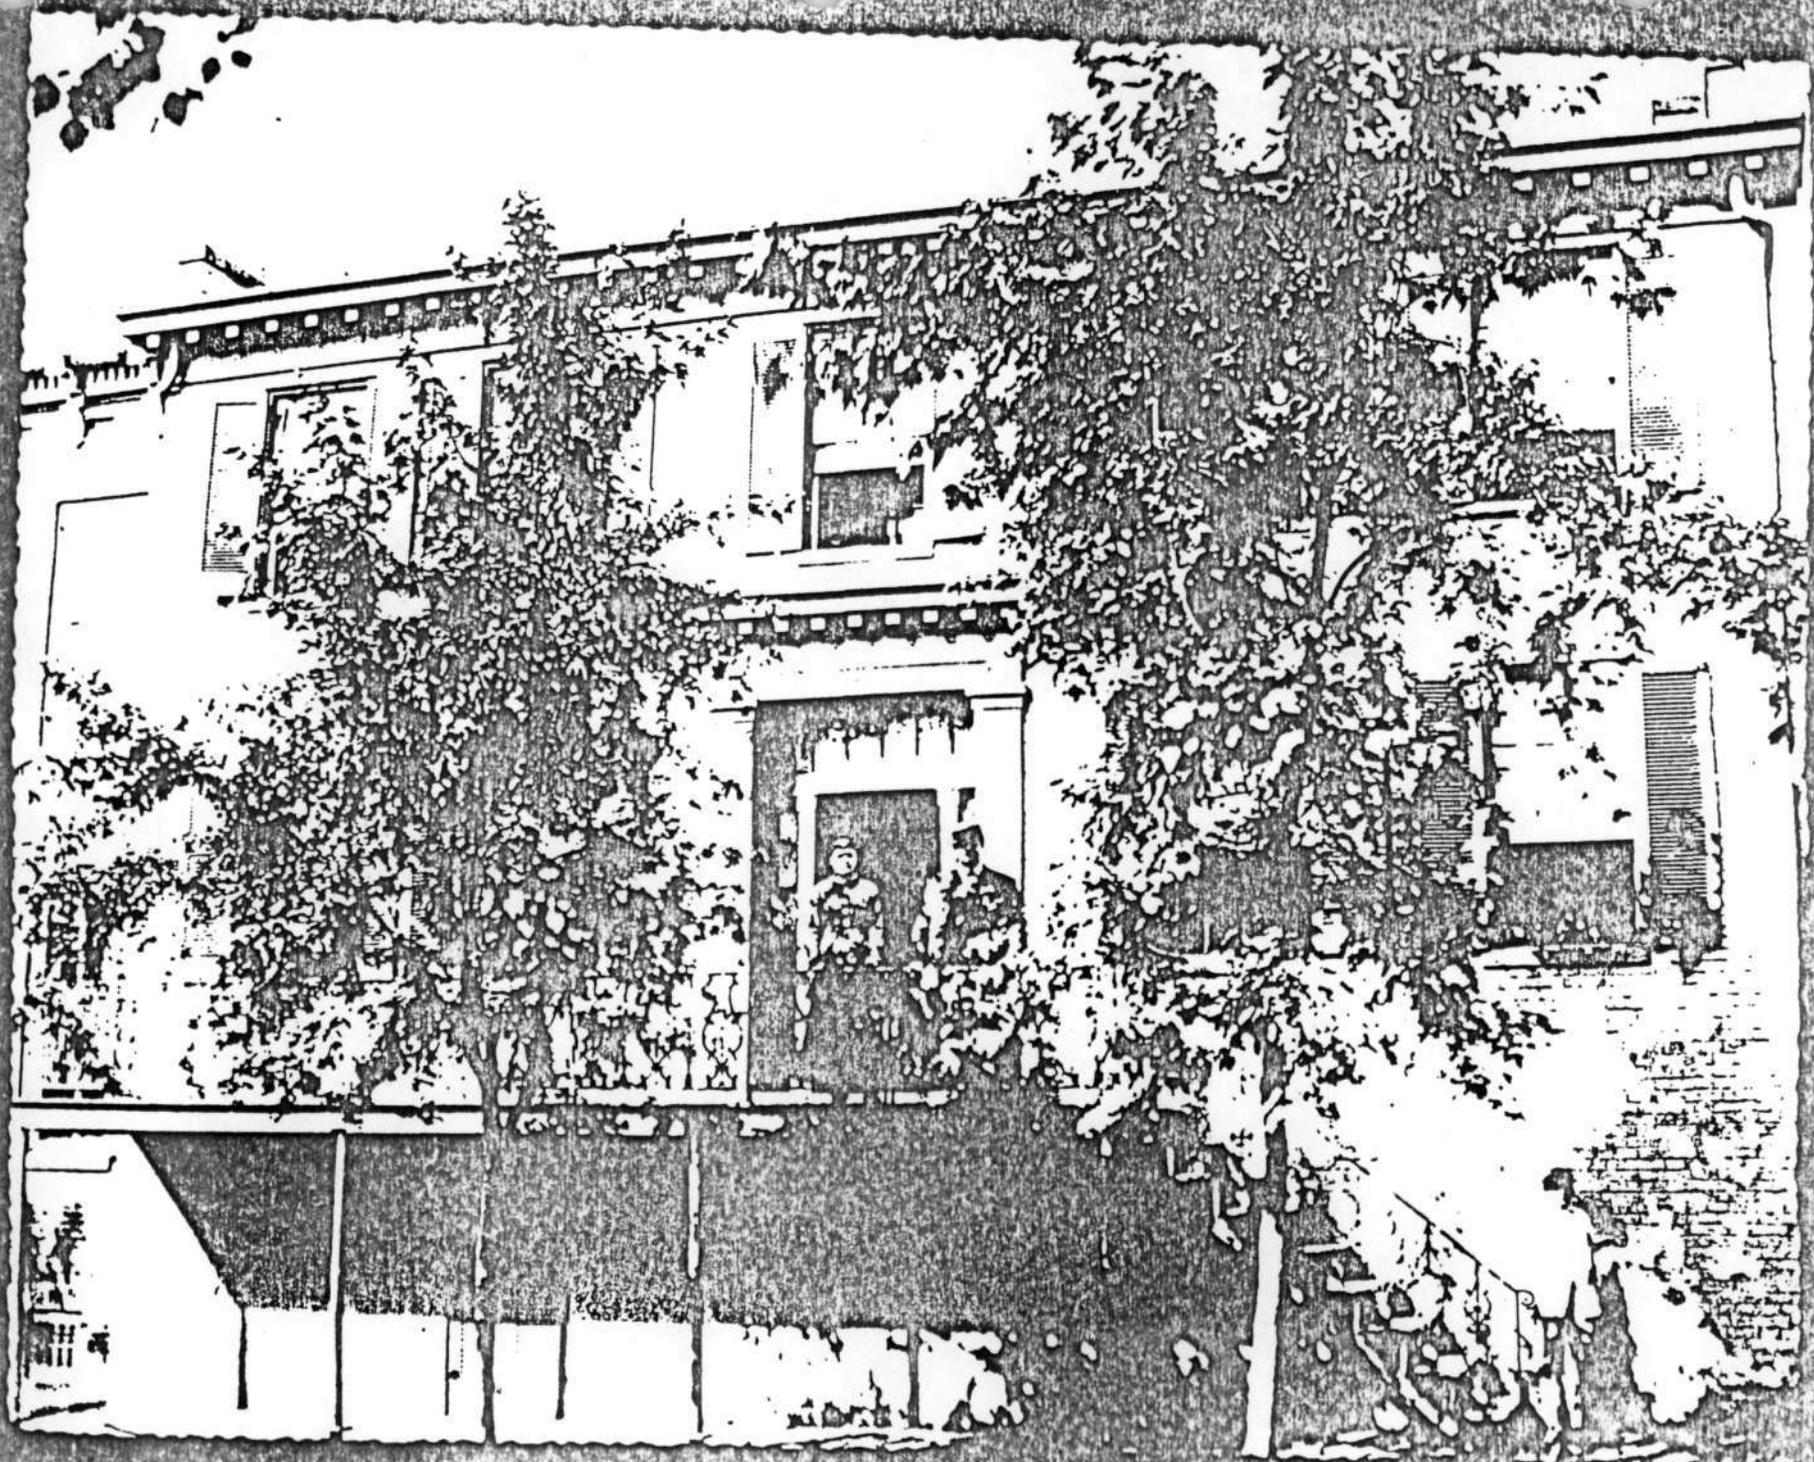

- 1) The scrolled consoles at eaves of exterior addition, which contrast with the straightforward dentil treatment at the eaves of the original building.
- 2) The lyre-design cast iron railing at the front porch and stair
- 3) The miniature doric-like cast iron columns supporting the front porch.
- 4) The cast iron truss-like stringer supporting the steps to the front porch.
- 5) Front door with carved wood inset (not original) and entablature, including denticulated cornice similar to that at eaves.

Distinctive interior architectural features include:

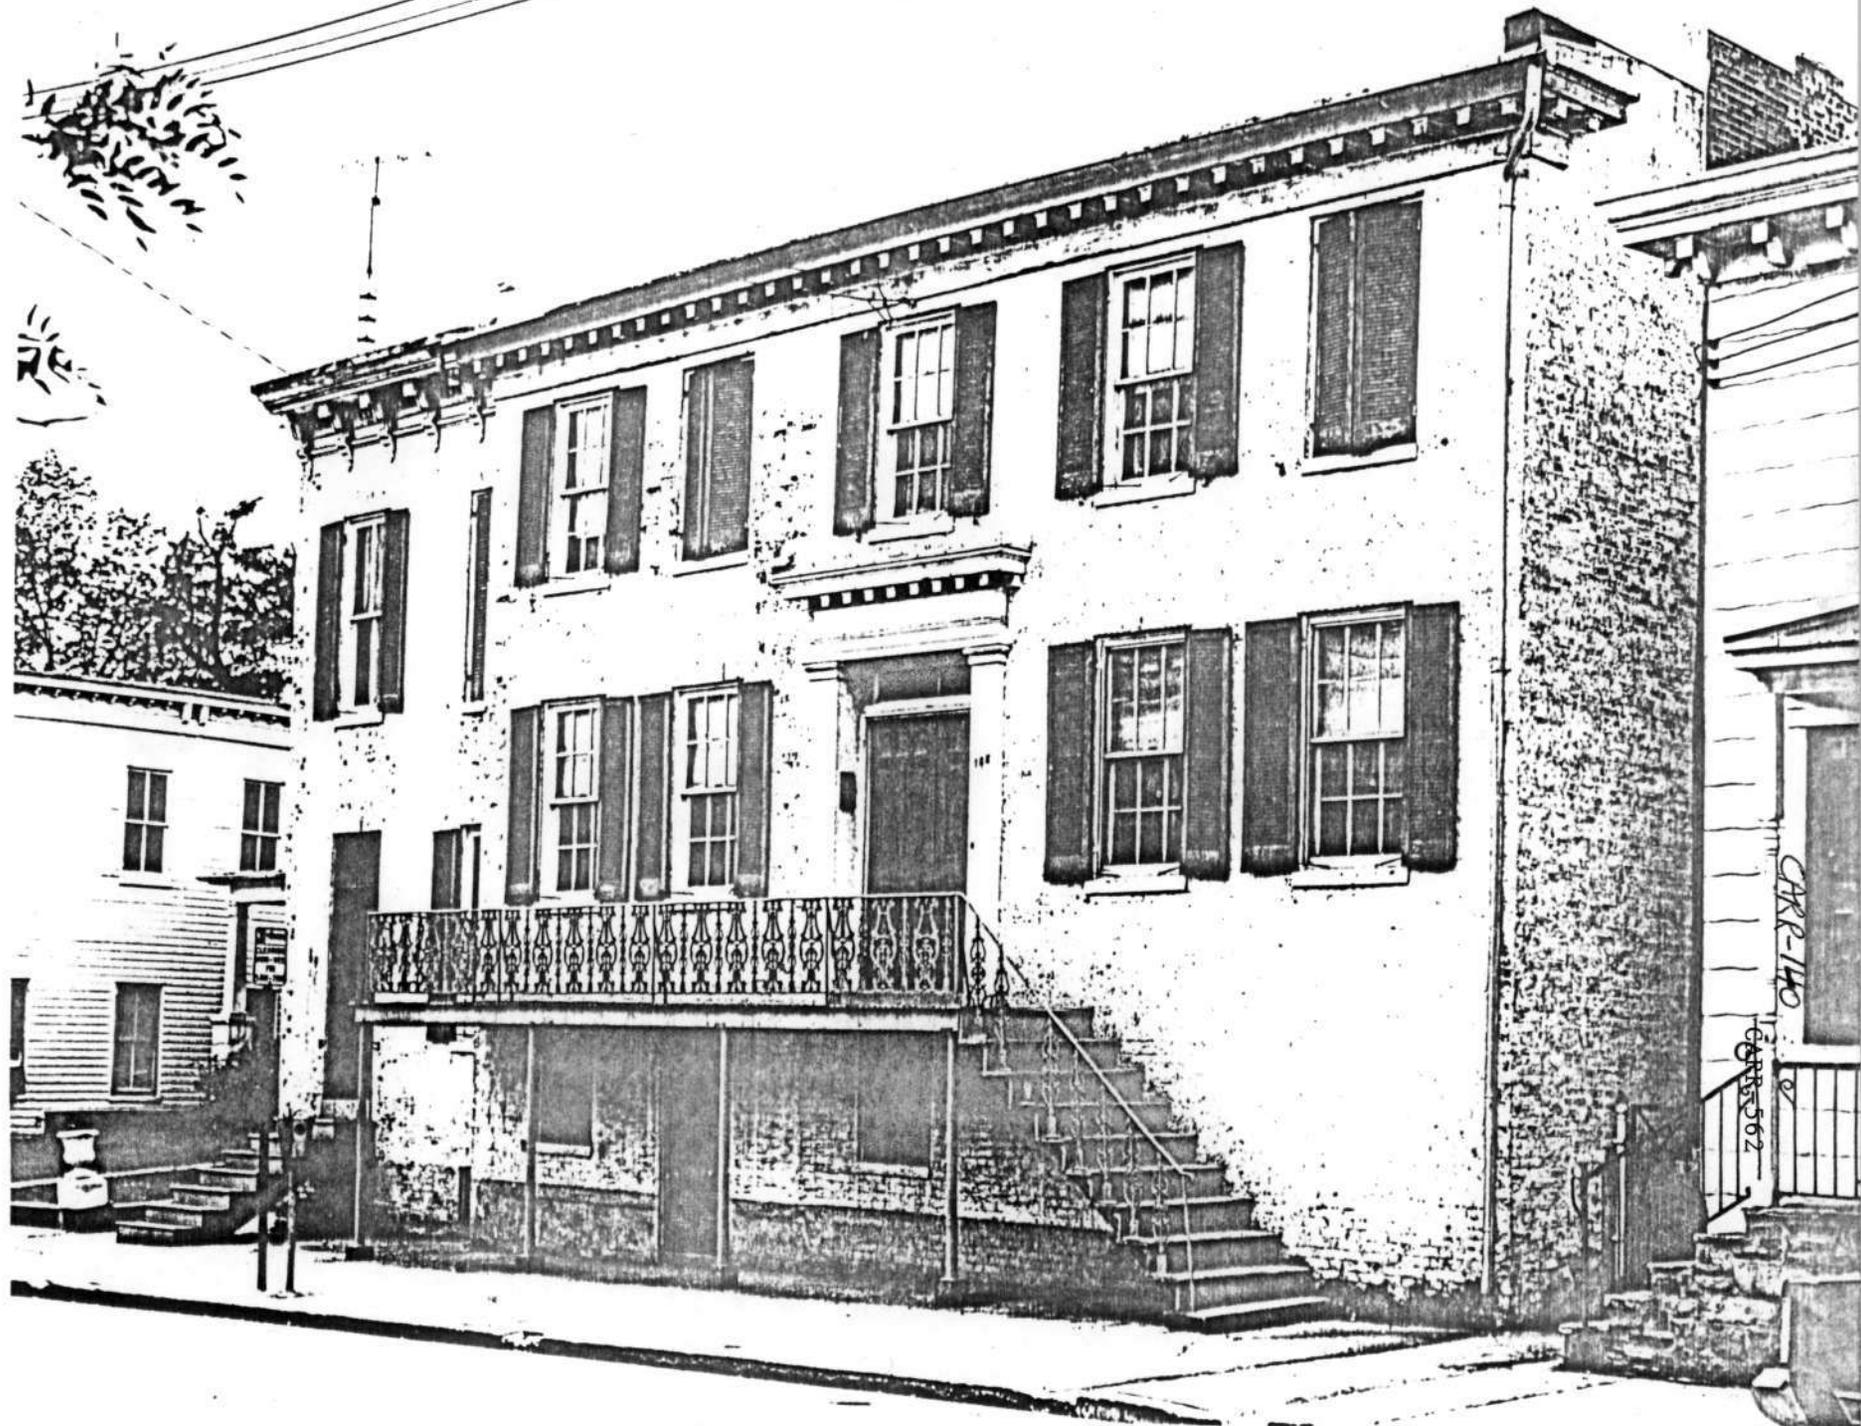

- 1) Marble mantel and surround (not original) at fireplace (now closed in) in first room to left of main entry.
- 2) Grand stair with wood handrail having turned wood balusters and newel post.
- 3) Period door hardware.
- 4) Wood mantels and surrounds at fireplace openings now housing period woodstoves.

are also noted in No. 2 above. The building stands on its original site. Also noteworthy is the fact that the same family has lived in this building from 1826 until the present. (Thus, there have been few alterations.) One member of that family, a "John Baumgartner", was Carroll County's first Register of Wills and the building served as his residence and office. Several of the Baumgartners were lawyers, and the building served as both residence and law offices over the years.
