Prepare both a summary paragraph and a general description of the resource and its various elements as it exists today.

The Falkenstine Tannery/Farm is a small complex of three structures located on the north side of Maple Grove Avenue. Though no longer a tannery, the farm is still in use for agricultural/livestock purposes.

House (1800-1805/1900-1915)

The main block is 2-1/2 stories, two bays by two bays. It appears to have been originally constructed of log covered in clapboard on a fieldstone foundation. It has been re-sided in frame and has six-over-six sash on all elevations and a porch with metal shed roof across the principal [east] facade. The metal gable roof with interior brick chimney on the north gable end is perpendicular to the road.

A 2-1/2 story Victorian vernacular addition, three bays by two bays with one-over-one sash, is affixed to the south elevation of the main block. Clapboard on a fieldstone foundation, the addition has a metal gable roof parallel to the road with gable dormer on the south side. Fish-scale shingles and a circular window decorate the dormer's face. A 2-1/2 story Queen Anne style frame tower on a brick foundation is affixed to the southeast corner of the addition and has one-over-one sash and a metal polygonal roof. A porch traversing the main facade has turned spindle posts with lace cornice brackets and a metal shed roof. 6-lite windows are located on the basement level on the east and west elevations.

Barn (1810-1840/1860-present)

The frame bank barn with fieldstone foundation is seven bays by three bays with metal gable roof parallel to the road. The forebay area has been modified by the addition of a cinder block enclosure in the southwest bay and a brick wall extension on the southeast corner. Prior to these additions, the forebay was originally unsupported. Its current orientation is south. Wood ventilators are located on the east and west elevations.

Outbuildings (1820-1860)

To the west of the barn is a frame one story carriage house/corn crib with shed addition and a metal gable roof. Located to the northeast of the main block is a frame shed currently used as a garage, with metal gable roof. The original windows have been boarded over but appear to have been six-over-six sash.

Prepare both a summary paragraph of significance and a general statement of history and support.

The Falkenstine Tannery/Farm was an integral part of the nineteenth century farming community located south of the town of Manchester, along the Hanover Pike. There was a moderate amount of stock farms in the area that would have used the tannery, which was one of two in the area.

The main block is possibly a log structure and the addition of the Queen Anne period. With the exception of this property, Queen Anne structures of this type within the project are limited to the towns of Manchester and Melrose. They are also rare in the county outside of the immediate environs of towns. The Falkenstine farmhouse addition is a good example of the Queen Anne style, including not only the polygonal tower, but also the fenestration, dormer decoration, and porch embellishments. The barn is an early structure that was also enlarged, from its original four bay by three bay size, perhaps at the same time the house was enlarged.

The property is listed on the 1862 Martenet Atlas [owner - Henry Falkenstine], the 1877 Lake, Griffing and Stevenson Atlas [owner - Andrew Patton] and the 1916 Rand Mc Nally Atlas [owner - Charles E. Trump].

Evaluation:

Constructed in the early nineteenth century and expanded a century later, Falkenstine Tannery/Farm is eligible for the National Register. The property is not eligible under Criterion A; no significant events historically or agriculturally have been determined to be associated with the property. The property is not eligible under Criterion B; no persons significant in local, state or national history have been determined to have been associated with the property. The property is eligible under Criterion C; the property is a significant example of its type, design or manner of construction. The Falkenstine Tannery/Farm is a good example of an early nineteenth century house extended by an intact, nicely detailed, Queen Anne addition rare in rural Carroll County.
