DESCRIBE THE PRESENT AND ORIGINAL (IF KNOWN) PHYSICAL APPEARANCE

The Brown-England-Rolfe house c. 1855 is a two story three bay by one room hall/parlor five course common bond brick house in what is known as Little New York. The house faces south and Little New York Road with the main gable running east/west.

The brick house rests on a partial fieldstone foundation and is covered with a medium sloped tin roof with extended eaves and sloped soffits.

The south facade is laid with stretcher bond with a molded brick cornice. A centrally placed entrance is flanked by single pane sash windows. The front door has been replaced and a "dolonial" surround applied. The second floor is lighted by a three single pane sash windows. Shell motif shutters dogs remain without their shutters.

The east gable end is a plain five course common bond brick wall with two four pane attic lights.

The west end has a plain brick wall except for the arched wooden datestone. 185 is all that is legible and is assumed to be 1855 since the house appears on the Martenet Map and the house seems a little late for 1845 but that is a possibility. The west wall is continuous and includes the two story two bay by one room kitchen that has a gable roof now but was a flounder addition to begin with. The sash have been replaced as well. A side entrance occupies the southern of the two bays. The door is a replacement. A recent single story kitchen has been attached to the gable end of the original wing.

The first floor of the main block used to be divided into two rooms, a hall and parlor but has since been enlarged with the removal of the interior partition. An enclosed winder stair rises in the northwest corner. A five panel door is attached to the door frame. A small three panel door is attached to the closet door frame below the stair. The stair rises to the second floor and another enclosed winder with four panel door rises to the attic. Partitions on the second floor have been added to increase the number of bedrooms. The rest of the house has been extensively remodeled, and original woodwork and details were removed.
