7. Description

Survey No

CE-1519

Condition

excellent deteriorated
 good ruins fair altered

Prepare both a one paragraph summary and a comprehensive description of the resource and its various elements as it exists today.

This barn ruin is located in Cecil County, within the Fair Hill N.R.M.A., and is off of the dirt access road that covers the Management Area. It is east of the Big Elk Creek, west of Appleton Road, south of the Mason-Dixon line, and north of Maryland route 273. It sits on the edge of a hillside that leads to the Big Elk Creek and is covered by vegetation.

The barn ruin is a very large structure with only the fieldstone foundation remaining. Round arch doors are located on the lower level of the barn and have brick headers. The entire stone surface was covered with a plaster coating and whitewashed. The upper stories were constructed of frame, but have deteriorated and fallen into the structure.

Evaluation for:

National Register Maryland Register not evaluated

Prepare a one-paragraph summary statement of significance addressing applicable criteria, and a narrative discussion of the history of the resource and its context. (For compliance reports, discuss evaluation on a DOE Form - see manual).

This barn ruin has significance as an example of the stone bank barns that once dominated the surrounding farming community of the Fair Hill area. Judging by the size of the barn it was most likely a landmark of the community, and dates from the Nineteenth century.
