DESCRIBE THE PRESENT AND ORIGINAL (IF KNOWN) PHYSICAL APPEARANCE

The Paw Paw building or Paw Paw was built in 1821 by the First Methodist Episcopal congregation of Port Deposit. This slightly rectangular building measures 36' x 40'. It is two stories in height and has a hip roof covered with asbestos shingles. The Paw Paw is constructed of stone covered with plaster on both the interior and the exterior. There was a box pulpit very high at the north end. Across the southern end was a gallery for the black members of the congregation who had a separate entrance in the southeastern corner of the church. There were also separate entrances for the men and women. The women's entrance was also on the north side of the building, but at the western end of that wall. The men's entrance was on the facade of the Paw Paw. Once inside the church, the women sat on the eastern side and the men sat on the western. Located centrally on the rear wall is a chimney made of brick which was for an old stove. The window sash throughout are 6/6. Some of them remain but are without glass. Every window had louvered shutters in 1914 and most of these are on the building site. Several of the shutters on the facade have strap hinges. Over the windows there are stone and wooden lintels as well as splayed arches of stone. There is no conformity or pattern evident. The exterior is very plain as is the box cornice and the frieze board. Each of the doors is panelled and has a transom over it. The sills of the doors are granite.

The facade of the Paw Paw has a centrally located entrance. A raised platform porch once extended from it with stairs leading down to a lower level on the south (in 1914 picture). This door is flanked on both sides by a pair of windows. The second story has two windows located on either side of the center of the building like the first story. Directly over the first floor door is an indented square space which could have housed a name or date plaque. The rear wall of the Paw Paw has no windows or doors.

The northern exterior wall has five windows, three on the first story and two on the second. Its southern counterpart has two panelled entrance doors located at each end with one window in the middle. On the second story there are two windows evenly separated.

The interior of the first story has a new floor. Dividing the building in half are three square columns spaced at different intervals. On the east wall the brick chimney is visible. This was connected to a small stove on each story. The interior of the second story has had the most alteration: Where there was no floor but open space for those in the gallery to listen and watch a floor has been added. One long hewn beam is exposed running north and south. Off of the main room which is located over the men's seating section are three small rooms. All of the doors on the second floor are panelled and have architrave trim. The ceiling of the main room has some crown moulding under it. The baseboard of this room changes as it reaches the north and south walls. It slowly arches upward about one and a half feet then runs across the wall to the side where it again slopes downward. The stairway to the second floor is completely enclosed and separated from the first floor by a plaster wall. The interior walls are lath covered by plaster. The main room has some wallpaper remaining on the walls.

Outside of the black's entrance are several granite stones arranged in a square to form a small stoop. Extending from the northeast corner of the Paw Paw and running parallel to the facade is a stone retaining wall which is broken only for steps down to the street level. Near the southwest corner are several granite steps leading down from the side entrances to the ground between the Paw Paw and the retaining wall.

STATEMENT OF SIGNIFICANCE

The Paw Paw building was used as a church from the time of its erection in 1821 until 1839 when a new church was built across the street. In the 1820's it was one of the churches on the Cecil and Strasburg circuits. After 1839 it was used as a school and was called Heath of Health Academy from the name of the teacher. From 1852 to 1867 the building served as a meeting place for Harmony Lodge. In 1860 it was also known as the Odd Fellows Academy which was a local school.

In 1877 the Cornish family operated a grocery store and "dining salon" in the Paw Paw. In 1894 Snow's Battery held their reunion at the "Odd Fellows Hall." This group was a society of Civil War Veterans, all from Port Deposit.

Until recently the building has been used as an apartment and also a recreation hall for the youth of the town. During the 1950's record hops and square dances were held on the first floor.

The Port Deposit Heritage, Inc: intends to restore the building to its 1914 appearance and use the Paw Paw for a library and museum.

In 1849, Mr. Elijah Reynolds had to move his carpenter shop into the Academy due to ice damage to his shop.

The following is from December 15, 1888 edition of the Whig (Elkton):

"In 1824 he [Rev. John Goforth] was on the Dauphin Circuit and in 1826 was junior preacher for Cecil Circuit. He was virtually in charge of Rock Run the first three years of its history (1819-1821) and in the latter year the first or Paw Paw church was built against the hill about the middle of the town on land donated by the mother of the Hon. J.A.J. Cresswell. It is a solid stone building, 36' x 40'....

"In May 1839, the official board resolved to build a new church.... It is a solid granite structure opposite the first or Paw Paw church, and was dedicated December 29, 1839.... (Nesbitt Hall - 40' x 55'.)

"During the pastorate of J.A. Brindle, Hon. Jacob Tome had begun the erection of the third structure as a memorial to his wife, a short distance north of the first and on the same side of the street. This was finished in 1872....

"This handsome structure is 55' x 102'---- it will be perceived that every time we have built a new church we have taken the length of the next preceding for the width of the new--- and this promises to be more than adequate for all the needs of the indefinite future...."

(This building would be difficult to restore, judging from the fact that it has been open to the weather for years it is safe to assume that little remains of the interior.)

Built for the first Methodist Church it was later used as an academy, and was the meeting place for Harmony Lodge of Masons between 1852-67.
