Addendum

The Old Stone Stables are located in Cecil County, within the Fair Hill N.R.M.A., and are on the dirt access road that crosses the Management Area. They are to the east of MD route 213, west of Gallaher Road, south of MD route 273, and north of Big Elk Chapel Road. The easiest way to get to the dirt access road is by entering at the Fair Hill Race Track, MD route 273 entrances, and then heading south. These stables are located right next to the Kennel Compound.

A tree that was overgrown and close to the foundation of the Stables was removed. Other than this necessary change, no other changes to this structure have taken place since the last historic sites survey was completed in 1979. Overall it is in excellent condition and still in use as a barn.

DESCRIBE THE PRESENT AND ORIGINAL (IF KNOWN) PHYSICAL APPEARANCE

A stone bank-barn, one storey high on the west with gable roof running north-south, with entrance gained by an earth ramp, central, on the west elevation. Present barn doors are modern sliding doors. The corners of the structure are marked by large dressed quions. At the level of the main floor, the walls are marked with flat stones that project slightly from the walls. There are two windows and a door below the main floor at ground level on the north end. There is a frame stable addition to the east, the roof of which continues the east slope of the main roof in the manner of a slat box.

The roof has been totally replaced within the last few years. The light frame structure of the present roof rests on two rough-hewn heavy timber trusses, vertically paired beams connected by diagonal members.

SPECIFIC DATES

BUILDER/ARCHITECT

STATEMENT OF SIGNIFICANCE

This building is an elegant structure, of proportion and type that place it with the two early 19th century barns on Big Elk Creek to the north (CE-300-A; CE-301-A). The stone gables (rather than frame, as in the other two examples) give it an earlier appearance, especially with the very steep pitch of the eaves. The old heavy-timber trusses are unusual, especially in barn construction, and may be very early.

Recommendations:

The building is presently in very good condition, and routine maintenance (which should be minimal) will more or less guarantee that condition, especially if it remains in use. Any contemplated changes should be discussed with the Maryland Historical Trust before implementation.
