DESCRIBE THE PRESENT AND ORIGINAL (IF KNOWN) PHYSICAL APPEARANCE

The Petty John Road sites are the remains of two farms that have been abandoned due to fire damage. Basically all that remains are foundation walls for two houses and two barns. The only structure that is in fairly good shape is a small stone spring house with a wood shingle roof. It is a single story in height with one entrance doorway.

From local sources the farmhouses were all 19th century in origin and of frame construction.

STATEMENT OF SIGNIFICANCE

These sites could at some future date have some importance as dig sites. The spring house is important as for comparison purposes. The land is still farmed by a neighbor who rents the land.
