CE-905
Near Rock Springs
Private

C. 1840

This two story seven course common bond brick house with corbelled brick cornices stands on property John McKinney purchased from Jonas Preston. (Next door at the time) The fifty acre property consists of two segments of different tracts, "Long Lane" and "Dividing". (JS 28/360 - 11/20/1830) 1858 County tax assessments value the 50 acre at $1800, while an adjoining 48 acres parcel purchased later by John McKinney was assessed at $672.00. This would indicate that the house stood on the 50 acre tract with the much higher valuation. Having acquired the 50 acre tract in 1830, John McKinney built the house within the next two decades which corresponds to the architectural details and second quarter of the 19th Century woodwork. The McKinney House obviously had a Scotch-Irish owner at the time of construction, namely John McKinney, who chose more fashionable brick instead of local fieldstone or log. The first floor plan consists of a central enclosed stair which is flanked by a room on either side. The major difference with this structure other than the brick construction, is the location of two front doors on the front elevation. This feature appears on structures that have an English or Scotch-Irish background at ~~the time of construction~~.

DESCRIBE THE PRESENT AND ORIGINAL (IF KNOWN) PHYSICAL APPEARANCE

The Connelly Brick Farmhouse c. <sup>1840</sup>~~1850~~ is a 2<sup>1</sup>/<sub>2</sub> story center hall single pile structure located on the east side of Sterrett Road just east of Porter's Grove. The house is placed on a northern slope of a hill with the main facade facing west. The primary gable runs on a northeast/southwest axis.

The common bond brick main block is 4 bays across by one room deep. The structure rest on a full uncoursed stone basement. The house is covered with a medium pitched slate roof.

The primary facade is a 4 bays across with the central two bays as doors. The 19th century 4 panelled doors <sup>openings</sup> have granite sills and three light transoms. Pintles remain on the 6/6 sash but the shutters do not. A single brick belt course extends across the main facade to primarily protect the shed roof from porch from water damage. The porch has turned supports and turned balusters for the porch railing. The last brick detail is a 3 course cornice.

The south gable end has two 6/6 sash on each floor and two 4 pane lights to illuminate the attic. Each window has an extended wood lantels. There are also basement windows with horizontal diamond cross-sectioned bars. A plain barge board protects the gable end, and the chimney has a single course cap.

The east facade is only three bays across with the center bay as an entrance. It too has a three light transon and 4 panel door. The windows are identical to the rest in the house except the northern 1st floor opening which is a 3 sided bay window.

Attached to the north gable end is a late 19th century two story aluminum siding frame addition which rests on an uncoursed stone foundation. The addition is not as deep as the main block. A six pane basement window is located on the north-western side of the main block and is also protected with diamond cross-sectioned horizontal bars. The basement, due to the slope is almost entirely exposed on the northern gable end.

The first floor interior consists of two rooms divided by an inclosed central stair. The south parlor woodwork, as in the rest of the house, is of late Federal/Empire design. The mantels are widely fluted with an undecorated frieze and a thick mantel shelf. Next to the fireplace in the north parlor is a 6 panel floor to ceiling door cupboard. The interior doors are of a 4 panel design with box locks. The window reveals are curved. The door surrounds consist of three vertical bands that descend in level toward the inside edge of the molding.

The backband having the highest relief. Similar but less detailed

STATEMENT OF SIGNIFICANCE

The house retains much of its significance since it has most of its period woodwork and architectural details. The house reflects the mid to late 19th century and is similar to another house at Rock Springs of about the same date. The owner of the house in 1877 was Mrs. R. McKinney and in 1858, Jno. McKenney.
