Welcome vic.
Private

1855

Erected circa 1855 for Dr. Alexander Hanson Robertson, Gunston is a Greek Revival-inspired 2 ½ story, three-part frame dwelling with a characteristic, double-pile, side-passage main block. At the time the dwelling was constructed it included over 800 acres comprising a large peninsula known as Gunston Point situated between Nanjemoy Creek and Hilltop Fork. The parcel includes a c. 1930 2-story tenant house built by and for local carpenter Alexander Warren in 1930. Like many other historic properties in Charles County, Gunston is a representative example of the side-passage double-parlor plan that gained such widespread popularity in Charles County before the Civil War. However, unlike many other examples, Gunston retains a good deal of its historic setting and includes a noteworthy scenic vista of the Nanjemoy Creek watershed.

Prepare both a one paragraph summary and a comprehensive description of the resource and its various elements as it exists today.

Erected circa 1855, Gunston is a Greek Revival-inspired 2 1/2 story, three-part frame side-gable dwelling with a characteristic, double-pile, side-passage main block. At the time the dwelling was constructed it included over 800 acres comprising a large peninsula in the western section of Charles County known as Gunston Point which is situated between Nanjemoy Creek and Hilltop Fork. Located on high ground overlooking open pasture and cropland descending to Nanjemoy Creek Gunston retains a good deal of its historic setting and includes a noteworthy scenic vista of Nanjemoy Creek. The dwelling was restored in a Colonial-Revival style during the 1930's. The parcel includes a c. 1930 2-story tenant house built by and for local carpenter Alexander Warren in 1930.

The dwelling faces southwest and includes a continuous brick American bond foundation supporting a wood frame. Weatherboard siding dates to a 1930 renovation. Two exterior American bond brick chimneys with corbelled caps are located on the northwest eave wall of the main block. The roof is pressed tin over wood shingles. The cornice is boxed and includes a frieze band on the eave elevations. The front elevation of the main block is three bays in width with a doorway in the southeastern-most bay. The entrance features a 6-panel wood door with applied molding surrounded by sidelights and a decorative leaded glass transom. The 1930's porch likely replaces the original of similar size. Windows are original 6/6 throughout. The attic reveals early band-sawn lumber and irregular cut nails.

The southeast elevation includes a single second story window that lights the interior stair, and a centered attic story window. The rear elevation has asymmetrical fenestration including three second story windows and a window and door on the first floor occupying the end bays. The door surround is Colonial Revival and likely dates from the 1930s renovation. The adjoining wing is flush with the main block exterior on both the front and rear elevations and includes single first and second story bays on either side. The eave elevation includes a centered attic story window and a second story window. The roofline is slightly lower to distinguish it from the main block. Finally, a single-pile service wing extends from the eave wall. Two stories in height, it has a dramatically lower roofline than the 2 1/2 story adjoining wing. The rear elevation includes a shed-roof porch sheltering a centered entrance.

The interior includes a characteristic side-passage double-parlor plan featuring a prominent turned newel and double 6-panel doors with applied molding which divides the parlor and dining room. Original floorplan, baseboard, door and window trim, floors and plaster remain intact. The dwellings most distinctive feature includes a graceful curved freestanding stair. Despite a high degree of original features and materials, Gunston is in a deteriorated state with observable foundation sagging and major plaster repairs necessary.

Standing to the west of the main dwelling is a distinctive 2-story tenant house built by local African-American carpenter Alexander Warren around 1930. Warren began work on the farm in the 1920's after it was acquired by the Bishop family. The hipped-roof frame dwelling has an overall L-plan with an irregular five bay facade, novelty siding, 6/6 windows with simple square-edged surrounds. The south and east elevations, or those facing the main house, each have a prominent centered hipped roof dormer.

Gunston is believed to have been constructed circa 1855 by Dr. Alexander Hanson Robertson. It is a representative example of the side-passage double-parlor plan that gained such widespread popularity in Charles County before the Civil War. Despite noticeable deterioration, Gunston is unique because of its relatively well-preserved historic setting including an intact scenic vista extending from the dwelling to Nanjemoy Creek.

Gunston was first surveyed by J. Richard Rivoire in June of 1970. In 1994, Rivoire completed a more extensive history of ownership for the current owners. Although the existing dwelling was constructed in the mid-19th century, the recorded history of the property began in 1654 with a manorial grant to Governor William Stone originally known as "Manor of Poynton". In the 18th century the property fell into the possession of the Fowke family and by the mid-19th century it was owned by Verlinda Fowke wife of Dr. Alexander Hanson Robertson. After Verlinda's death in 1870, the family relocated to Baltimore. In 1887, the house including 675 acres, was sold to Thomas Gaither. Gaither subsequently defaulted on his loan and the property was sold at public auction in 1899. In 1913 Lemuel Owens sold the property to Gilbert H. Bishop of Baltimore.(1)

Throughout the 1830s, 1840s, and 1850s, Charles County experienced a period of economic prosperity and associated new construction unrivalled until the second half of the 20th century. The 2 1/2 story side-passage double-pile plan with dependencies extending from the elevation opposite the stair passage was so widespread that well over half of existing pre-Civil War historic structures follow this general plan.
