

CH-31
"Waverley" Servants House
Waverly Point Road
Newburg (Morgantown vicinity)

c. 1800

The Waverly Servants House is a two-story, three bay wide brick and frame building with two rooms. The door is in the center of the front (south) facade of the first floor, which is built of brick, and is flanked by one 6/6 window on either side. The front facade of the second floor, which is frame, holds two 6/6 sash windows, one above each of the first floor windows. This frame second floor was added in the Late Victorian period.

The west gable end holds one 6/6 sash window centered in the second floor.

The east gable end (with an internal chimney) holds one 6/6 sash window in the south bay of the second floor. The first floor of this gable end is covered by a shed-roofed frame addition.

The interior fireplace and chimney appears not to be original, as it is not joined to the brick wall at all, but rather built flush to it, the east gable serving as a back all of the fireplace and chimney flue. There is a corner stair in the northeast, but this is also not original.

The ceiling of the first floor seems to have originally had the joists and random plank flooring above exposed as it has traces of whitewash.

The building is difficult to date, but was probably built about 1800.
