Survey No.: CH-401 (PACS A6) Construction Date: 1928

Name: Francis D. and Mary Jo Quade Property

Location: 8316 Leonardtown Road, Hughesville, Charles County

Private/Residence/Occupied/Good/Restricted

Description:

The Francis D. and Mary Jo Quade Property is a 1½-story, 3-bay side-gable cottage with an associated shed on the east side of Leonardtown Road in the Hughesville vicinity of Charles County. Constructed in 1928, the building has an asphalt shingle roof with a brick interior chimney and a shed roof dormer. It is of wood-frame construction with aluminum siding and a concrete block foundation. The building includes an enclosed, shed roof porch on the west (front) elevation and a gable roof addition on the east (rear) elevation. The wood-frame shed is located northeast of the main house and has a flat roof with an exterior brick chimney.

Significance:

The Francis D. and Mary Jo Quade Property is a vernacular cottage constructed in 1928 on a .271 hectare (.67 acre) parcel on the east side of Leonardtown Road, in Hughesville, Charles County, in Maryland. According to the Charles County Tax Assessor, the building was constructed in 1928. The structure is not a significant resource, as it is an undistinguished example of a common building type. It has been significantly altered by the enclosure of the shed roof porch on the west elevation, a shed roof addition on the east elevation, and the addition of aluminum siding.

Prepare both a summary paragraph and a general description of the resource and its various elements as it exists today.

The Francis D. and Mary Jo Quade Property is a 1½-story, 3-bay side-gable cottage with an associated shed on the east side of Leonardtown Road in Hughesville, Charles County. Constructed in 1928, the building has been altered by the enclosure of the porch, a gable addition, and application of aluminum siding.

The residence has an asphalt shingle, side-gable roof with an interior brick chimney and a shed dormer containing a metal awning over the windows. It is of wood-frame construction with a concrete block foundation, and it has aluminum siding. The building contains an enclosed shed roof porch with a 3-light, wood panel front door on the west, or front elevation and a gable roof addition on the east elevation. The windows are a combination of wood, 2/2 and 6/1 double-hung.

Interior access was not available.

There is one flat-roof, wood-frame shed associated with the property. It contains a brick exterior chimney and is located northeast of the main house.

The property is bordered by residences to the north and south and a wooded area to the west. The setting is a mid-twentieth century residential and commercial area along Leonardtown Road, a major regional thoroughfare.

Potomac and Chesapeake Railroad" (Gannett 1904: 43). By 1906 the community was known as "a station of the Southern Maryland Railroad...and a banking town" with two (2) physicians, two (2) general stores, two (2) blacksmiths, a grist and saw mill, a flour mill, an undertaker and livery, a hotel, a hotel and saloon, a grocer and saloon, an insurance salesman, and a population of 150 (Maryland 1906: 667).

Between 1870 and 1940 the vernacular cottage style was typically built for Americans of modest means. They are characterized by simple ornamentation and mass-produced components, such as door frames, moldings, sash and window units, and porch decoration. The development of post-Civil War machinery capable of producing large amounts of standardized housing elements, such as those found in cottages, contributed greatly to the development of the modern American housing industry. Designs for vernacular cottages were obtained from popular magazines, such as House Beautiful, or carpenter's and builder's journals, such as American Builder. A variety of front-gable, side-gable, cross-gable and hipped roof frame cottages were developed in the early to mid-twentieth century. Front-gable and hipped roof cottages are primarily 1 to 1½-stories tall, 3-bays wide and several rooms deep. Side-gable and cross-gable structures are usually 2 to 2½-stories tall, are typically 2 to 3-bays in width and vary from one to three rooms deep. They usually include a porch covered with a shed roof. Porches are supported by posts often containing machine-produced Victorian ornamentation. Some cottages feature ornamentation drawn from Craftsman style or Colonial Revival architecture (Gottfried and Jennings 1988, viii-xv).

National Register Evaluation:

Constructed in 1928, the Quade property is not eligible for the National Register of Historic Places. The property is not eligible under Criterion A, as research conducted indicates no association with historic events or trends significant in the development of national, state, or local history. Historic research indicates that the property has no association with persons who have made specific contributions to history, and therefore, it is not eligible under Criterion B. It is not eligible under Criterion C, as the structure is an undistinguished example of a common building type, and its integrity has been compromised. It has been significantly altered by the enclosure of the shed roof porch on the west (front) elevation, the gable roof addition on the east (rear) elevation, and the use of aluminum siding. Finally, the structure has no known potential to yield important information, and therefore, it is not eligible under Criterion D.
