

CAPSULE SUMMARY SHEET

Survey No.: CH-464 (PACS B33) Construction Date: circa 1930

Name: Milstead Property

Location: 8471 Leonardtown Road, Hughesville, Charles County

Private/Residence/Occupied/Fair/Restricted

Description: The Milstead Property is a 1½-story, 5-bay side-gable cottage on the west side of Leonardtown Road in Hughesville, Charles County. Constructed circa 1930, the building is L-shaped in plan with a rear ell and a gable roof screened porch located on the rear elevation. The structure has a side-gable roof covered with asphalt shingles. The building is of wood-frame construction with asphalt roll brick siding, and it has a parged foundation. The windows are wood 1/1 double-hung. The house has small entry porches on the front and north elevations. The porches have front-gable roofs with return cornices and are supported by two, round, tapered posts. Another gable roof porch is located on the rear elevation of the rear ell. The rear porch has a closed railing and is screened.

Significance: The Milstead Property is a .27 hectare (.67 acre) lot on the west side of Leonardtown Road. According to architectural investigation, the house was constructed circa 1930. The building is a common twentieth century building type which lacks individual distinction. The material integrity of the building has been compromised by the application of asphalt roll brick siding and vinyl siding on the exterior.

Prepare both a summary paragraph and a general description of the resource and its various elements as it exists today.

The Milstead Property is a 1½-story, 5-bay side-gable cottage on the west side of Leonardtown Road in Hughesville, Charles County. Constructed circa 1930, the building is L-shaped in plan with a rear ell and a gable roof screened porch located on the rear elevation.

The structure has a side-gable roof covered with asphalt shingles. The building is of wood-frame construction with asphalt roll brick siding, and it has a parged foundation. The windows are wood 1/1 double-hung. The house has small entry porches on the front and north elevations. The porches have front-gable roofs with return cornices and are supported by two, round tapered posts. Another gable roof porch is located on the rear elevation of the rear ell. The rear porch has a closed railing and is screened.

The house has a symmetrical fenestration pattern with a central entry on the front elevation. A single double-hung window and a pair of double-hung windows is located on each side of the entrance. The front elevation has two gable roof dormers on the second story.

Interior access was not available.

There is one outbuilding associated with this property. A front-gable garage is located northwest of the house. Constructed circa 1930, it is of wood-frame construction with an asphalt shingle-covered roof and vertical wood siding.

The property is located on the west side of Leonardtown Road, with commercial property to the north and west and residential property to the south and east.

8. Significance (Continued)

livery, a hotel, a hotel and saloon, a grocer and saloon, an insurance salesman, and a population of 150 (Maryland 1906: 667).

The house on the Milstead Property is a side-gable cottage constructed circa 1930. From the 1870s to the 1940s, the vernacular cottage style was typically built for Americans of modest means. They are characterized by simple ornamentation and mass-produced components, such as door frames, moldings, sash and window units, and porch decoration. The development of post-Civil War machinery capable of producing large amounts of standardized housing elements, such as those found in cottages, contributed greatly to the development of the modern American housing industry. Designs for vernacular cottages were obtained from popular magazines, such as House Beautiful, or carpenter's and builder's journals, such as American Builder. A variety of front-gable, side-gable, cross-gable and hipped roof frame cottages were developed in the early to mid-twentieth century. Front-gable and hipped roof cottages are primarily 1 to 1½-stories tall, 3-bays wide and several rooms deep. Side-gable and cross-gable structures are usually 2 to 2½-stories tall, are typically 2 to 3-bays in width and vary from one to three rooms deep. They usually include a porch covered with a shed roof. Porches are supported by posts often containing machine-produced Victorian ornamentation. Some cottages feature ornamentation drawn from Craftsman style or Colonial Revival architecture (Gottfried and Jennings 1988, viii-xv).

National Register Evaluation:

Constructed circa 1930, the Milstead Property is not eligible for the National Register of Historic Places. The property is not eligible under Criterion A, as research conducted indicates no association with any historic events or trends significant in the development of national, state or local history. Historic research indicates that the property has no association with persons who have made specific contributions to history, and therefore, it does not meet Criterion B. It is not eligible under Criterion C, as it is a common twentieth century building type which lacks individual distinction. The building lacks material integrity through the application use of asphalt roll brick siding and vinyl siding on the exterior. Finally, the structure has no known potential to yield important information, and therefore, is not eligible under Criterion D.
