

St. Catherine's Catholic Church

1911

CH-751

Mc Conchie vic.

Private

St. Catherine's Catholic Church is highly representative of churches built in Charles County during the early 20th century. Erected circa 1910 the church faces northwest and consists of a one-story, front-gable structure with a square belltower attached to the principal elevation.

The church evolved from the St. Ignatius, Hill Top (CH-97) congregation, in order to serve the needs of parishioners in the Mc Conchie area. In 1911, 1 3/4 acres was deeded from Lemuel B. Owen. St. Catherine's has historically been an African-American church that has shared a pastor with St. Ignatius, Hill Top.

Prepare both a one paragraph summary and a comprehensive description of the resource and its various elements as it exists today.

St. Catherine's Catholic Church is highly representative of churches built in Charles County during the early 20th century. Erected circa 1910 the church faces northwest and consists of a one-story, front-gable structure with a square belltower attached to the principal elevation. The rectangular wood frame stands on a poured concrete piers infilled with concrete blocks. The frame has been reclad in vinyl siding. Windows are 1/1 vinyl replacements with original square-edged wood surrounds exposed. Shingles are composition. The principal entrance includes wooden double front doors with transom sheltered by a small gable porch supported on simple square wooden posts.

The two-tier belltower serves as the vestibule and includes the buildings primary decorative elements such as rectangular windows and a hipped roof and a cross as a pinnacle. An original lightening rod with glass ball also adorns the pinnacle. The side elevations expose six bays of simple rectangular windows. A rear gable addition is attached to the rear southeast corner and includes a rear entrance on the southwest wall. Two symmetrically placed windows adorn the rear wall of the main block. The interior was not available at the time of the survey.

The church is surrounded on the three sides by graves adorned with a variety of markers and stones. These stones generally range in date from the early 20th century to the present. Grave markers include marble and limestone tablets, wooden and concrete crosses and simple small metal plates. Of note are the locally manufactured concrete crosses which have not been identified elsewhere in Charles County. At least twelve are present and seem to range in date from the 1940's to 1970's. Prominent surnames include Proctor, Keys, Payne and Gray.

Prepare a one-paragraph summary statement of significance addressing applicable criteria, followed by a narrative discussion of the history of the resource and its context. (For compliance reports, complete evaluation on a DOE Form - see manual.)

St. Catherine's Catholic Church is a representative example of early 20th century sacred architecture in Charles County. The church evolved from the St. Ignatius, Hill Top (CH-97) congregation, in order to serve the needs of parishioners in the McConchie area. In 1911, 1 3/4 acres was deeded from Lemuel B. Owen. St. Catherine's has historically been an African-American church that has shared a pastor with St. Ignatius, Hill Top.

Southern Maryland is the cradle of Catholicism in the American Colonies. In 1638, the first land grant in what would become Charles County was issued to Thomas Copley, a Jesuit priest. The Jesuits were eventually granted over 4000 acres on both sides of the Port Tobacco River including a 3500 acre farm containing Cedar Point Neck, and 500 acres on the west side of the Port Tobacco River to serve as the Jesuit Headquarters. In 1642, a Jesuit mission was established nearby at the Indian town of Potopaco where Father Andrew White composed a grammar, dictionary and catechism in the native Potobac dialect.
