DESCRIBE THE PRESENT AND ORIGINAL (IF KNOWN) PHYSICAL APPEARANCE

This relatively small two story commercial building has a pressed tin cornice with large brackets at the corners, and recessed rectangles below a series of modillions. A brick building, the upper story of the front has been covered with concrete or stucco. There are three tall windows on the second story with flat arches above. The original simplicity of the building is marred by the renovation of the first story and the large signs of the occupant.

STATEMENT OF SIGNIFICANCE

Old postcards of Race Street reveal that this was originally a fairly simple, but attractive commercial building. It has been altered by renovation of the first story and a large inappropriate sign on the front, but could be returned to an appearance more in keeping with the original design.
