 DESCRIBE THE PRESENT AND ORIGINAL (IF KNOWN) PHYSICAL APPEARANCE

This house is the rectory of Zion Methodist Church, which is next door. The house is built of stone and consists of two stories. It has a steep pitched gable roof. The second story windows extend above this unusually low roof and are gabled above. On the front are four bays and there is a raised beltcourse between the first and second stories. On each end of the house is a chimney. On the west end is a one story screened porch with a hip roof. The windows in this house are of the casement type. Although built in the 20th century, the style of this house retains many colonial features, typical of the 17th and early 18th century.

SPECIFIC DATES

BUILDER/ARCHITECT

STATEMENT OF SIGNIFICANCE

This 20th century structure is a revival of early colonial architecture, with its steep pitch gable roof, beltcourse, and casement windows. It is a well maintained and attractive dwelling which serves as the rectory for Zion Church.

It was built for the church by Capt. Levi Phillips.
