BUILDER/ARCHITECT

STATEMENT OF SIGNIFICANCE

An example of vernacular style architecture, built sometime around the turn of the century, this house is similar in design to others on Locust. Although not particularly significant in itself, from an architectural point of view, these houses on Locust Street have significance as a group of homes reflecting the type of dwelling that were lived in by the middle class during this era. The street has potential attractiveness, although many homes have been altered or are in need of paint, and trees which provided shade and beauty are now gone from parts of the street.
