DESCRIBE THE PRESENT AND ORIGINAL (IF KNOWN) PHYSICAL APPEARANCE

This two story frame house is three bays wide by one bay deep, and faces south. A full-height ell, two bays wide, extends to the rear from the east end of the building. The house is sheathed in bevel siding with narrow corner boards; its gable roof is covered with patterned asphalt. The cornice is boxed, with short returns at the gables and a plain frieze. Corbeled brick interior chimneys rise from the peaks of the west, east, and north gables.

A one story porch, its half-hip roof supported on square columns, spans the principal (south) facade, sheltering the central entrance which is flanked by 6/6 sash windows. Three 6/6 windows on the second floor are aligned over the first-floor openings. The eastern half of the porch is enclosed with screening.

The east facade is spanned by a one-story, shed-roofed porch, enclosed with wooden latticework on its southern third and with screening on the remainder.

The house stands in a small yard with several large trees and shrubs surrounded by cultivated fields. Various agricultural outbuildings are arrayed behind the house.
