Bethel Evangelical Lutheran Church
Lewistown vicinity
Private

Ca. 1838; 1881

The Bethel Evangelical Lutheran Church is a one-story brick church originally built in 1838 and greatly rebuilt in 1881 with a large modern foyer built in 1988 on the principal north elevation. Although the original entrance facade is obscured by the foyer, the east and west elevations retain their original three bays with Gothic arched windows filled with late 19th century colored glass. The church is surrounded on the east, south, and west by its associated cemetery, in which is displayed the 1881 bell, removed from the demolished belfry. The church is a fair example of the brick rural church of the late 19th century in Frederick County, although much integrity has been lost by the exterior changes. It also represents the separation of the Lutheran and Reformed congregation of the vicinity in 1881, which had shared the "union" chapel built in 1838.

CONTRIBUTING RESOURCE COUNT: 1

Bethel Evangelical Lutheran Church is a one-story brick church built about 1838 with major exterior renovations and additions in 1881 and 1988 which resulted in a modern brick and glass foyer on the north gable end of the original church. The church cemetery is located on the west, south, and east of the building and the Bethel School House (F-3-94) is also located on the church property south of the cemetery. The dates are based on dated stones in the exterior walls and the Williams & McKinsey History of Frederick County (1910). The church is located on the southeast corner of the intersection of Opossumtown Pike and Bethel Road, near Lewistown, Frederick County, Maryland. The principal elevation is on the north.

The east and west elevations of the church have three bays with Gothic arched window openings filled with 4/4 late 19th century stained glass. The roof is composition and once had a belfry which has been removed. The bell, cast in 1881 by the McShane Foundry in Baltimore, is on a small pedestal in the cemetery northeast of the church. The 1838 and 1881 dated stone is at the northwest corner of the original building. The modern foyer conceals the original north entrance elevation. The interior was inaccessible for this survey.

Prepare both a summary paragraph of significance and a general statement of history and support.

The Bethel Evangelical Lutheran Church is a fair example of the late 19th century rural church in Frederick County. Some portion of the building may date to the original 1838 church on the site, but the general appearance of the original section, built in 1881, is greatly altered by the 1988 foyer added to the north end of the church. However, the east and west elevations and the datestones in the church clearly convey the history of the building, as does the surrounding cemetery with stones dated from the late 1830's to the present. The church was built as a union chapel with the Reformed Church and Lutheran Church sharing the building. Prior to 1838, services had been held in the stone schoolhouse south of the church (F-3-94). In 1881, the Reformed Church built its own church at Charlesville about 1/4 mile southeast of Bethel (F-3-91). In the same year, the present building was erected. The establishment of both churches signaled that the slowly growing population of rural Frederick County had reached a point in numbers and wealth which allowed the two denominations, which had shared buildings throughout the County, to maintain separate churches.
