This dwelling is situated in a semi-rural section of southeastern Frederick County, which is experiencing intensive suburban residential development. Rolling hills, which are characteristic of the piedmont, a stream, suburban housing developments, and an electricity transmission line constitute the house's prominent surrounding landscape features. The house fronts Bartholows Road. This frame vernacular style house dates from 1900. The building stands on a continuous masonry foundation. The exterior materials include board-and-batten wood siding, weatherboard siding, and cornerboards. The fenestration consists of six-over-six, double-hung, wood sash windows and metal storm windows. The gable roof has asphalt shingle roofing. A shouldered brick chimney stack stands against the gable end of the northeast elevation. A two-story rear addition has been appended to the building. The projecting gable of a gable-roof addition shelters the front porch. A gable roof, brick veneer new garage stands at the rear of the house.
