DESCRIBE THE PRESENT AND ORIGINAL (IF KNOWN) PHYSICAL APPEARANCE

Pennterra is a 2 1/2-story, late eighteenth century house built of stone from a local quarry. Located south of Creagerstown, Maryland, this Georgian farmhouse faces southeast toward the Monocacy River about three-fifths of a mile northeast of the road. The five-bay main block as well as the original eighteenth century, two-bay kitchen adjacent to the northeast elevation show fine workmanship in stone. Two twentieth century additions, one at each end, duplicate the earlier masonry.

The proportions of Pennterra are pleasing. At each gable end of the main block, there is a double stack, brick chimney. Window and door openings have flat arches of gauged stone with a large keystone present over the door. There is a box cornice with a later bracketed frieze underneath. The window openings have 6 over 6 lights and the door has a rectangular transom. The exterior architraves of the doors reflect Greek Revival designs.

Pennterra has a simple plan of a central hall flanked by one room on either side. On the first floor, the parlor is to the southwest and the dining room between the hall and the kitchen. Because of the new southwest addition, one window beside the fireplace in the gable end has been made into a door, the other plastered over. The kitchen wing, which retains its large fireplace, has a straight stair adjacent to the northeastern gable end of the house. This stair now leads to a bedroom on the second floor of the kitchen since the attic was enlarged by lessening the pitch of the roof to the rear of the kitchen.

Most of the interior trim is not original. The dining room has retained its Georgian paneling surrounding the fireplace. Above the fireplace is a large, simple panel framed by an eared architrave. Most of the interior architraves have been replaced with Greek Revival moldings having corner blocks. The mantel in the parlor also reflects Greek Revival taste, but those of the second floor, dating from the latter nineteenth century, are good examples of bold, late Victorian compositions.

Some of the original staircase remains. Though the Georgian paneling remains on the first floor, the newel, handrail and balusters are late Victorian replacements. However, some balusters and the handrail as well as the scrolled step ends remain on the stair leading to the attic.

The owners are interested in accurate restoration of the major elements of the house. They have shown a continuing interest in carrying this work to completion.

STATEMENT OF SIGNIFICANCE

Pennterra is a fine Georgian stone house built at about the same time as nearby Strawberry Hill (dated 1783). It was remodelled in the Greek Revival period and is still in good condition today. This house is an especially good example of the fine quality stonework often found in Frederick County.

Pennterra stands on a piece of land composed of three tracts: Four Dividend, Long Looked for come at last, and Resurvey on Paw Paw Bottom. Nicholas Carroll sold the first of these to Henry Griffith in 1784 and in 1796 Abraham Grushong (later Groshon) purchased it from Griffith's heirs. This large tract of land is also the same on which Strawberry Hill was built.<sup>1</sup>

When Abraham Groshon died, all his lands were to be sold by his executors to pay his debts. In 1841 Elias Groshon, his heir and executor sold the property to William Dutrow. In 1868 it was acquired by George W. Ogle, son of Benjamin Ogle, tenth Governor of Maryland.<sup>2</sup>

Ogle moved to Pennterra, where he made many improvements, in 1870. He lived in the house for eighteen years, after which he moved to another farm. His son, Lewis C. Ogle, purchased Pennterra from his father's estate in 1898.<sup>3</sup>
