DESCRIBE THE PRESENT AND ORIGINAL (IF KNOWN) PHYSICAL APPEARANCE

This large, temple shaped, detached brick, former church is 2-1/2 stories in height with the gables on the front and rear and a newer, three story, one bay square tower rises to the right (E) side. The building is approximately four bays wide and four larger bays in depth with a full-width brick, 1-1/2 story shed-roofed rear extension and an additional one story brick extension. All brickwork is in unpainted common bond. Brick piers buttress the sidewalls at the corners and between the windows. The main entranceway is now in the right tower section. First floor front windows have been altered with plywood to accomodate small apartment windows, but the second floor front retains the original 6/6 sash windows, and all have wood lintels and sills. Two small, four paned, round "bullet" windows light the top gable with a similar window in the top section of the tower. Side and rear windows are of 6/6 sash with wood lintels and sills. The building has a steep sloped slate roof with the front gable framed by a moulded box cornice with returns resting on the end piers. The tower is topped by a battlemented roofline. This building sets on a rather high foundation.
