

ABSTRACT

G-IA-187

MASON-DIXON LINE: MILESTONE NO. ---(189) 1767 (mound), 1902 (monument)
Salisbury, Pennsylvania vicinity
Public/private

Milestone No. ---(189) and its large mound of earth/mark ^{on Meadow Mountain ridge} Mason and Dixon's 176 miles and 46 chains west of the "Post Marked West in Mr. Bryan's Field," or 173.584 miles from the northeast corner of Maryland, the beginning of their 230.228-mile West Line, the English provincial boundary later known as the Mason-Dixon Line, famous for its historical impact and innovative survey methods. The monument is a very plain dressed marble post with a low pyramidal top, quarried and carved in Cockeysville, Maryland; is in excellent condition, unaltered, firmly in place; measures 10 inches square by about 13 inches high above the mound; and is embellished only by the capital letter P on the north side facing Pennsylvania, M on the south side facing Maryland, the year 1767 on the east side ^{the site was} (when/originally surveyed and marked with a cairn), and 1902/^{on the west side} (when the new monument was added to the mound ^{during} the 1900-03 Resurvey of the Maryland-Pennsylvania boundary, replacing the original wood post, long since gone). The mound, also in excellent condition, is well preserved and measures about 14 feet in diameter by about 3 feet high at the center. On the national and state levels, No. ---(189) and its mound are significant primarily as being among the thematic group series of some 248 markers still visually defining the West Line. Locally, as among the some 42 markers along the present Garrett/Somerset-Fayette county boundary, they are also significant symbolically for their identifiable relationship to the colonial and Civil War heritage of these counties.

DESCRIBE THE PRESENT AND ORIGINAL (IF KNOWN) PHYSICAL APPEARANCE

Milestone No. ---(189) and its large mound of earth mark Mason and Dixon's 176 miles and 46 chains west of the "Post Marked West in Mr. Bryan's Field" (or 173.584 miles from the northeast corner of Maryland, the beginning of their^{230.228-mile} West Line). The monument was a new, dressed Cockeysville marble post with a low pyramidal top when added to the mound in 1902 during the 1900-03 Resurvey of the Maryland-Pennsylvania boundary. It is in excellent condition, unaltered, firmly in place; measures 10 inches square by about 13 inches high above the mound; and is embellished only by the capital letter P on the north side facing Pennsylvania, M on the south side facing Maryland, the year 1767 on the east side (when the site was originally surveyed and marked with a cairn), and 1902 on the west side. The mound, also in excellent condition, ^{is well preserved, and} measures about 14 feet in diameter by about 3 feet high at the center, where the monument now replaces the original wood post to mark the survey point .

The area here is the high, ^{remote} densely forested ridge of Meadow Mountain (elevation at the site 2755 feet), ^{identified} as "top of little Meadow Mountain" by Mason and Dixon in their journal (A. H. Mason transcription 1969, p. 193). The site is within Election District 3 of Garrett County, MD, and marks the ^{south} corner of Greenville and Elk Lick Townships of Somerset County, PA; about 2¼ miles southeast of the town of Salisbury, PA; about 2½ miles north-northeast of the scattered settlement of Piney Run, MD; about 1200 feet west of the Meyersdale Road/T-496; at the north end of the ridge; at a point about 28 feet south of the pipeline, in the forest, with an old east-west barbed wire fence running across the south edge of the mound, joined by an old north-south barbed wire fence to form a corner. It cannot be seen from any road or the pipeline; but easily from nearby along one of the fences, and is protected by the fencing, ^{obscurity} and remoteness.

The monument, identical to 65 other monuments of 1902 set west of Sideling Hill to visually reestablish the Maryland-Pennsylvania boundary, was quarried and carved in Cockeysville, MD, of a white, fine-grained marble called magnesian limestone or saccharoidal dolomite; was originally cut about 10 inches square by about 4½ feet long, intended for setting about 1½ feet above ground with the remaining 3 feet for setting into the ground, eliminating the need for a concrete foundation. The letters and numbers are blocky, V-sunk without serifs, and are horizontally aligned as a band around the stone near the top. These, and the top planes and apex are intact and clear, though there are small chips at the top corners and northeast vertical edge. (see Thematic Group NR nomination form for further descriptions of the 1900-03 Resurvey monuments and original mounds)
