BUILDER/ARCHITECT

STATEMENT OF SIGNIFICANCE

Paul Frazee states that this house was built as "an exact reproductive of great-grandma's house in West Virginia," with the exception that her house was brick. Frazee recalls that the house was built 93 years ago (counting back from 1980, that would be 1887) in the same year one of his uncles was born. A log house on the property was torn down after the new house was built. A barn with a hand-hewn frame is also reported to exist on the property.

Many Frazees are buried in the Great Crossings Cemetery (G-II-A-069) a couple miles to the east. The first Frazee settler in this area, known as Frazee's Ridge, was Thurman Frazee, whose tombstone states that he was born in 1752, died in 1843, and was a member of the church for thirty years.
