This vertical plank constructed house is situated in a flat wooded area west of Sand Spring and faces south. It is a two story, two by one bay house with a gable end front roof. A single story shed addition runs from the facade around the east elevation to the rear north elevation where it connects with a second single story shed addition across the rear. A porch, supported by four plain square wooden posts extends across the facade of the main structure and the addition.

An exterior central brick chimney is located at the rear of the house between the main structure and the addition. Two over two sash windows light the facade. Modern style single paned windows light the rear and east elevations (there are no windows on the west elevation) The windows, front entrance and corners of the house are framed with plain flat boards. A second entrance is located at the small porch of the rear addition to the west and a third on the east elevation. The house, on a cinderblock foundation, is covered with zig-zag cut tarpaper sheets. The roof is covered with asphalt shingles.
