DESCRIBE THE PRESENT AND ORIGINAL (if known) PHYSICAL APPEARANCE

Although this house is in a ruinous state and only the walls are standing, these are of log construction -- wide hewn logs with dove-tail joints. The house was at one time covered with 'insul-brick' [asphalt shingles] and planks; the road side shows where there was an addition. There are foundations remaining here and where this addition was pulled away from the main house, the exposed logs are rotten. There is also the remains of a porch on this side (later addition). The roof is burned out, but the rafters [ridgepoleless] remain. House contained at least four rooms and is of 2 storeys.

[This house's days would appear to be numbered.]

STATEMENT OF SIGNIFICANCE (Include Personages, Dates, Events, Etc.)

Unfortunately, the future of this log house seems to be very doubtful, however, with its 2 full storeys, this is a representative example of the settlers dwellings in Garrett County. In fact, it might even be called substantial [log construction being synonymous in most minds with cabin size; it is larger than the Drane House, G-2] and solidly built (dovetail joints have prevented the customary sagging and pulling. House is interestingly sited on edge of hill, with stream below (signs of erosion of hillside). House's condition is symptomatic of other log houses in area, a once common, but fast disappearing form of construction.

[See Fuller-Baker Log House, G-10.]

There are foundations here + where this part was pulled away, the logs are rotten. There is also the remains of a porch on this side. The roof is hinged out, but rafters remain. ridedeless

All four walls are of log - this rectangular 4th room frame w/ at least four rooms + 2 full story is probably substantial example (see Fuller-Baker Log Ho.) Walls are exposed to the elements + house's days would seem numbered.

Unfortunately, this log house, (~~once typical~~ of Garrett County but with too few extant) would appear to be at the near the end of its days. ~~Once~~ Once more common in Garrett County this log house is a representative of the early 19th C. old log dwellers in the area (Fuller, Baker, School House, etc.) Substantial (well, log construction is imbedded in one mind as synonymous with cabin-size) and solidly built (doctail joints have prevented customary sagging + pulling. ~~House~~ House is interestingly sited on edge of hill with stream (+ signs of erosion below). House's condition is ~~sympto~~ symptomatic of the loss of - etc.
