Mill Run School is located across Mill Run Road from Mill Run, approximately one mile E of the Youghiogheny River Lake. The area is heavily wooded and is now a small summer resort area.

The school is a one and one-half story, gable-roofed building with a gable-end facade. The facade points SW. A one-story, gable-roofed addition extends from the SE elevation and a one-story shed porch runs the length of the NE elevation. A one-story, gable-roofed, screened porch covers the facade and central entrance door.

The school rests on a low cut stone foundation and is covered with white German siding with a wooden water table. The school exhibits a variety of windows. On the NW elevation are a central double casement window flanked on each side by a three over one sash window. A scar the size of the sash windows appears under the casement windows. On the other elevations, four-paned casement, one-paned casement, and various other types of windows are represented. All windows have simple cornices and plain board surrounds, and several windows have louvered shutters. All window trim is painted green.

The roof is covered with asphalt shingles. On the NW & SE elevations are shed-roof dormer, each with two casement windows. The house has two stone fireplace chimneys: one at the center of the house and one on the SW elevation of the addition.

The interior of the house is unknown.

To the N of the house is a small, shed-roofed outbuilding, possibly a privy. To the S of the house is a small well with a stone well head and a gable canopy. The well is still open.

The school is now a private residence and appears to be in seasonal use as a summer retreat.

STATEMENT OF SIGNIFICANCE

The Simon J. Martenet maps of Western Maryland of 1866 and 1886 place a school in the general vicinity of this structure. In addition, Scharf mentions a school at Mill Run in May 1882. The teacher at that time was Jefferson Guard, and the trustees were Benjamin H. Green, Jonas Wass, and Newton Guard.

This school is one of many examples of Garrett County neighborhood schools which have been adaptively reused instead of removed. As such, they provide focal points of Garrett County social history.
