DESCRIBE THE PRESENT AND ORIGINAL (IF KNOWN) PHYSICAL APPEARANCE

The Josephus Glotfelty House is located in a hollow on the E side of Rock Lodge Road. The house is surrounded by fields. To the S is marshland known as the Glades.

The house is a two-story, gable-roofed dwelling measuring three bays across the facade. The gable ends measure two bays across and the facade points W. A one-story, hipped-roof porch covers the central facade door, and a one-story shed porch covers the N gable end. A one-story, shed-roofed enclosed sunporch runs the length of the E elevation.

The house rests on a low stone foundation and is covered with aluminum siding over German siding. The windows are two over two sash and all surrounds have been obscured by the aluminum siding. The facade door has an upper panel of glass, while below are six small square panels containing wooden bullseyes. Above the door is a rectangular transom.

The roof is covered with black asphalt shingles and has a small box cornice. The house has one interior stove chimney on the main block, just S of center. The facade porch roof is covered with black asphalt shingles and is supported by four chamfered posts which exhibit jigsaw and turned brackets. The porch on the N gable end has five chamfered posts and a latticework balustrade.

The interior of the house is unknown.

Northwest of the house is the remains of a frame bank barn. The barn has a stone foundation and is covered with vertical boards. Only the S wall is still standing. A brick silo stands W of the barn.

STATEMENT OF SIGNIFICANCE

This house is a variation of a common western Maryland type. The three-bay facade arrangement occurs frequently in the county, but this house is missing the characteristic rear wing, which would have housed the kitchen. The rear sunporch appears to be of modern construction.
